Move Forecast In Berlin Crisis

BERLIN (AP) — The Western powers were reported Sunday to be moving toward a counterproposal on the Berlin question. The proposal: a call for a summit conference on Germany's future.

Informants predicted the Western Allies would attempt to throw all German issues into one giant conference encompassing not only the fate of Berlin but German reunification and a German peace treaty as well.

The idea came into the spotlight as the East German Reds warned that any future airlift to supply isolated West Berlin would be regarded as a military threat.

West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer scheduled a flight to West Berlin next Thursday to discuss the situation with Mayor Willy Brandt. Adenauer is expected to outline his government's view on the Moscow proposals at a big rally.

Diplomats in Western capitals discussed an East-West parley — either at the foreign ministers or summit level — as a counter to Thursday's Soviet demand that West Berlin be made a neutral free city. Responsible informants said the West Germans pushed the parley idea after it became clear the West is going to reject the Soviet proposal.

Interest in a conference quickened after Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev said Saturday night at a Moscow reception he wanted a peaceful Berlin solution and would "like to discuss things

Like Says U.S. Won't Abandon Berlin To Reds

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — President Eisenhower Sunday reaffirmed United States determination to refrain from any course which would abandon West Berlin to Russian domination.

The reaffirmation came after Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles had discussed the Berlin crisis at the President's vacation headquarters, at the Augusta National Golf Club.

In a statement afterward dealing with Soviet maneuvers aimed at shoving the Western Allies out of divided Berlin, Dulles said: "The President reiterated our government's firm purpose that the United States will not enter into any arrangement or embark on any course of conduct which would have the effect of abandoning the responsibilities which the United States, with Great Britain and France, has formally assumed for the freedom and security of the people of West Berlin."

The statement added up in substance to fresh rejection of Russia's proposal to create a "free" demilitarized city of West Berlin.

The Soviet proposal, made Thanksgiving Day, was coupled with a Kremlin declaration that the postwar, four-power occupation agreement for Berlin is void.

The same day the proposal was made the United States said this country never will enter into any agreement with the Soviet Union "which, whatever the form, would have the end result of abandoning the people of West Berlin to hostile domination."

The Soviet plans to give the Western Allies six months to enter into negotiations to establish a free city.

Moscow said that if the plan was unacceptable, "then there no longer would exist any subject for talks," and that Russia would put the plan into effect.

Dulles flew to Augusta from Washington en route to Mexico City for the inauguration of Mexico's new president, Adolfo Lopez Mateos. He was accompanied by two other members of that delegation, Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, the President's brother, and Gen. Curtis LeMay, Air Force vice chief of staff.

French Reds Swamped In Vote Windup

Soustelle Gaullist Party Emerges As No. 1 Political Group

PARIS (AP) — Jacques Soustelle's right-wing Gaullist party emerged triumphantly Monday as France's biggest postwar political group.

The Communists took a shellacking in Sunday's windup election of a new National Assembly.

Communist strength was reduced to ashes in the Assembly although the Reds retained roughly 20 per cent of the popular vote. More moderate opponents of Premier Charles de Gaulle were all but wiped out.

Sent to defeat in the Gaullist sweep was Jacques Duclos, brilliant floor leader of the robust Communist party bloc that numbered 149 in the last Assembly. The vote tabulations trimmed the Communist seats to less than 10 per cent of their former holdings.

UNR Wins 187 Seats

Soustelle's grouping is the Union for the New Republic — UNR, a hodgepodge collection that tied itself to a reluctant De Gaulle. The Premier had tried to keep out of the elections personally.

Interior Minister Emile Psalterier gave the following results to 464 of the 465 parliamentary seats in Metropolitan France:

Union for a New Republic 147; Independents-Peasants 120; Catholic Popular Republican Movement 44; Socialists 40; Radical Socialists 13; Christian Democrats 13; Communists 10; Diverse leftist parties 27, and Diverse rightist parties 27.

The new National Assembly will have 546 members. Ten are being elected from overseas departments and 71 from Algeria and the departments of the Sahara.

A collection of familiar faces on the French political scene disappeared in the elections. They included old party wheelhouses, former premiers and ministers.

All told, 338 former deputies were defeated and 142 re-elected. The average age in the new Assembly will be 49 compared with 52 in the outgoing house.

Reds Held 174 Seats In 1946

The biggest previous postwar party strength in a French Parliament was 174 seats held by the Communists in 1946. The Communists had the biggest bloc in the last Parliament.

Soustelle's new union contains some old political faces and a collection of newcomers, united on one basic point — continuation of French rule in Algeria under De Gaulle. The UNR's position on France's grave economic problems and international policy has not been clearly defined. Some of the sentiment in the UNR is clearly less liberal than De Gaulle's thinking on the Algerian question.

Blast Following Train Derailment Fatal To Three

MADISON, Fla. (AP)—A Seaboard Air Line Railroad freight train jumped the track at Ellaville early Sunday, killing three persons in a fiery explosion.

Bodies of the three, believed to have been hoboes, were burned beyond recognition. The train crew of four escaped injury.

Forty-eight cars and three engines, carrying telephone poles and liquefied petroleum gas, plunged off the track near a rural switch.

Cause of the derailment was not determined.

Costly Fires Break Out In Boston, Philadelphia

By The Associated Press

Expensive fires broke out Sunday in widely scattered areas, damaging a Boston hotel and destroying a Philadelphia church and a Salvation Army headquarters in St. Charles, Mo.

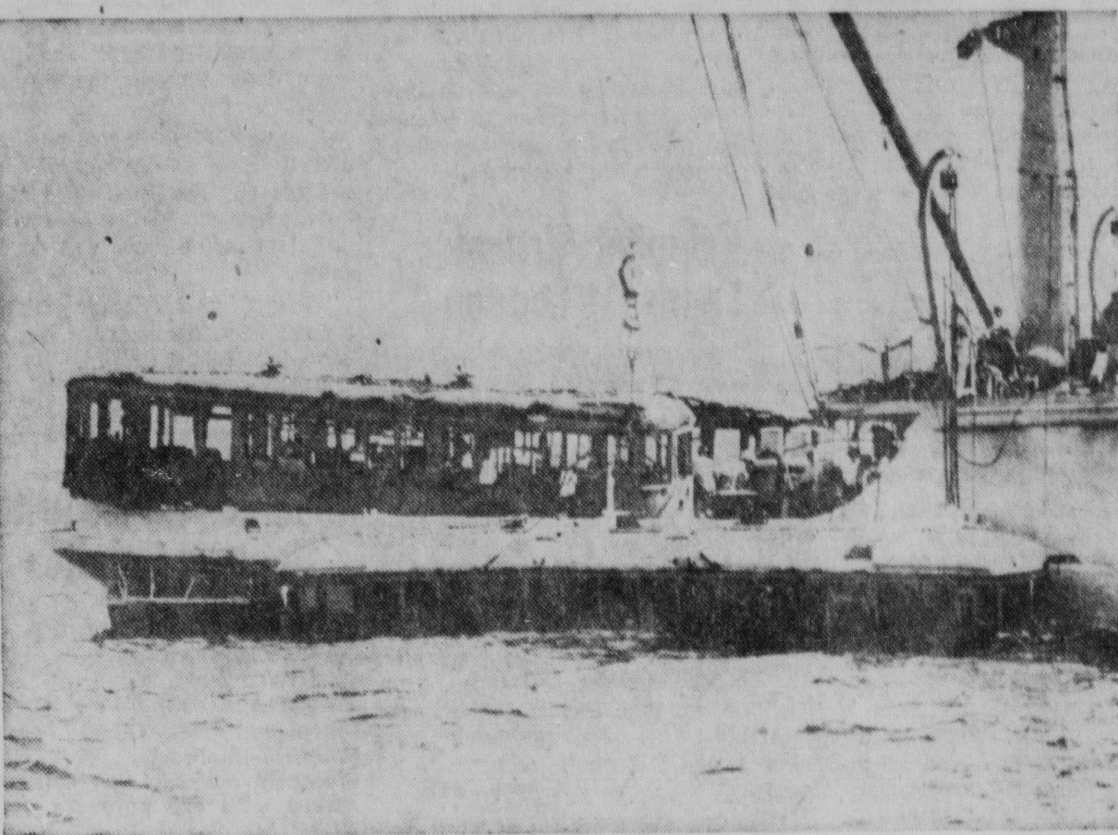

In Boston, 80 persons fled to safety in frigid weather as flames swept three floors of the Hotel LaSalle in the theatrical district. The hotel guests stood at smoke-filled windows and screamed through the corridors until they were rescued by firemen. Damage was estimated at $40,000.

Flames in the historic Philadelphia church, which set the huge, 100-year-old tower ablaze like a torch, sent 1,500 worshippers fleeing into the cold during afternoon services.

Until 15 years ago the church was called Bethany Presbyterian. Its membership once included pioneer merchant John Wanamaker. Now it is called the General Assembly Church of The Lord Jesus Christ of the Apostolic Faith.

Along the Missouri River waterfront in St. Charles, Mo., a three-hour fire demolished a large Saltrick Army headquarters and a grain elevator. Damage was estimated at $150,000.

No causes of any of the fires were established. However, Boston Fire Chief Leo Driscoll said the hotel fire started in a basement night club. He ordered an arson investigation.

Youth Admits Killing, Robbing Two Men, Boy

HOUSTON, Tex. (UPI)—A sanity hearing was set Sunday for 18-year-old Nearvel Moon, who admitted killing two men and a boy because he needed their money to get his mother's teenaged.

The hearing will be held Monday. Moon, charged with three counts of murder and one of armed robbery, Sunday led investigators to the scene of the slaughter near Addicks' Dam, about seven miles west of Houston. There he re-enacted the shootings.

He got $48 from his victims—Bertrand J. Appleton, 58; his son, Steve, 11, and Lee Hanson, 30, a family friend.

The two men and young boy were hunting and target practicing with a 22-caliber pistol in a swampy area west of Houston when killed Saturday.

The Appleton family returned Nov. 1 to Houston, where it had lived from 1954 to 1956 before moving to Miami, Fla. Mrs. Appleton said her husband quit his job to return to Houston because he and his son loved to hunt and target shoot, and they could do more of it in the Houston area than around Miami.

Young Moon told authorities his mother had been up several nights with a tooth ache and he wanted to get some money so she could go to a dentist.

Sen. Mansfield Would Use Food To Cut Aid Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont) proposed Sunday a program to scale down foreign aid costs by substituting food for dollars in hungry world areas.

Mansfield, assistant Democratic floor leader and a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said he and some other Democrats will oppose a billion-dollar increase in foreign aid spending reported under consideration by the Eisenhower administration.

Instead, Mansfield said in an interview he will propose that part of the crop surpluses now in government hands be diverted into foreign aid channels.

"Our farm surpluses now are seven times what they were when Secretary of Agriculture Benson took office," Mansfield said. "We should attack that problem by arranging a system by which we could deliver some of these commodities to hungry peoples rather than giving dollars to their governments."

Mansfield said he believes commodities like wheat could be distributed in this way without disturbing the system by which some agricultural surpluses are being disposed of abroad for local currencies.

"The point would be to get these surplus foods into the hands of the people of the world who have only one meal a day and have no means of buying more food," he said. "If this were done properly, it could become one of the most powerful forces against communism."

The Queen's party, including her daughter, Sophia, arrived in Chicago aboard their special car at the end of the Santa Fe Chief and spent three hours here before going on to New York.

Roy West, 90, GOP Elder Statesman, Dies

CHICAGO (AP)—Roy Owen West, an elder statesman of the Republican Party, and secretary of the Interior in 1928-29 under Calvin Coolidge, died Saturday in Presbyterian Hospital after a long illness. He was 90.

West was a member of the Republican National Committee from 1912 to '6 and from 1924 to 1932. He was western treasurer of the committee in 1928.

Arctic Cold Lets Up In West, Numbs East

By The Associated Press

Arctic cold which had clung stubbornly to the midcontinent for several days eased its hold on the Northern Plains Sunday.

But more icy weather was in prospect in the East and South, and the Weather Bureau forecast a fresh cold snap from Montana to upper Michigan by late Monday.

The mercury climbed to 32 at Bismarck, N. D., and 58 at Rapid City, S. D., by midday — points where temperatures tumbled to subzero levels only a day earlier. The warming was accompanied by cloudiness and scattered snow flurries.

Strong northwest winds continued to drift a one-foot snowfall which had blanketed the North-east from the lower Great Lakes to the northern Appalachians. Daytime temperatures remained in the 20s deep into Virginia. A hard freeze was forecast across the Carolinas with freezing temperatures on tap for portions of the Gulf States.

The bitter cold spell which moved out of the Plains in the wake of a severe snow storm Thursday was centered in the Northeast. Overnight lows from 10 to 15 below zero were on tap from eastern New York to upper New England.

Akron, Ohio, recorded one below zero — the coldest on record for so early in the season there. International Falls, Minn., listed its coldest reading for the month of November with 27 below zero.

A few patches of rain dampened regions along the New Mexico-Texas border and cloudiness accompanied colder air pushing into southern Florida. But fair skies ranged across the bulk of the region from California to the middle and south Atlantic coast.

Rain also collected along the Washington coast and cloudiness spread across the northern Rockies. A few patches of snow accompanied a m r m i n g southerly breezes from Nebraska to North Dakota.

Western and upper New York state residents were still digging out of two-and three-foot snow which drifted to five and six feet, closing many primary roads Saturday. Hundreds of motorists were stranded on the thruway and were given shelter in service areas, garages, town halls and nearby homes.

Dulles Gets Quiet Mexican Reception

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles received a quiet and orderly reception Sunday night when he arrived to represent the United States at the inauguration of President-elect Adolfo Lopez Mateos.

A Communist-inspired "Dulles go home" campaign failed to get off the ground and authorities said there were no disturbances in the city. The capital and the country was in a fiesta mood for the inauguration Monday.

Palace Says Queen Mother Not Seeing Crystal Gazer

LONDON (AP)—The royal family issued a formal denial Sunday that Queen Mother Elizabeth has been regularly visited by a 41-year-old Irishman who reads the future from a crystal ball.

A statement from Buckingham Palace issued through the British Press Assn. said: "The press secretary to the Queen wishes to inform editors that the story concerning the crystal gazer visiting Queen Elizabeth was consulted before it was issued."

"The form of the palace denial made clear that Queen Elizabeth was consulted before it was issued."

Royal denials are rare in the extreme. Until a few years ago it was palace policy to ignore newspaper stories about the royal family, whatever they said.

The policy was changed to kill off speculation about Princess Margaret's future if speculation ever got on the wrong track. The last denial was in May this year.

The Pictorial said Corbett regularly goes to the Queen Mother's residence at Clarence House by been regularly visited by a 41-year-old Irishman who reads the future from a crystal ball.

"Why does the Queen Mother consult him? The marriage problems and prospects of Princess Margaret are a natural field."

U.S. Has Yet To Contract For A-Plane

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (AP) — America's nuclear aircraft engine is similar to the Russian one.

But America's atomic airplane has not been built.

Russia's A-plane, according to Aviation Week magazine was built six months ago and has been flying for at least two months.

Aviation Week Editor Robert Hotz said the United States is at least four years behind the Russians.

Where does America stand? For one thing, facilities to test the U.S. engine in conjunction with an air frame—on the ground—are not expected to be finished until next fall.

Those facilities are being built at the Atomic Energy Commission's eastern Idaho testing station west of Idaho Falls.

It was on this testing station in January 1956 that a turbo-jet engine was powered by heat from a nuclear reactor for the first time—at least as far as America was concerned.

The AEC said it was a laboratory model but that it at least demonstrated the feasibility of the engine which was designed by the General Electric Co. at Evendale, Ohio.

That engine has been improved considerably and tested several times since 1956.

Convair and Lockheed have been working on suitable designs for an atomic airplane for several years, mainly at Convair's Ft. Worth, Tex., and Lockheed's Marietta, Ga., facilities.

But the government has not announced the award of any contract to actually build an A-plane.

Snow, Frigid Weather Boost Holiday Deaths

By The Associated Press

Traffic	398

The Thanksgiving holiday, a four-day respite from workaday chores for many Americans, was costly in accident-caused deaths.

To some extent, rigorous weather was a deadly factor. A storm swept from the Rockies to the Atlantic Coast during the period spreading heavy snows. Behind it came record cold for much of the East.

Some motorists died in crashes caused by blinding snowfall, others skidded into fatal snafus on treacherous icy pavement. The sharp cold brought a wave of destructive fires from faulty home heating equipment, and some of these took lives.

There was no official yardstick of Thanksgiving holiday accident death probability. The National Safety Council made no special estimate hinged to holiday conditions for the current weekend. The council said, however, that 470 deaths in traffic could be expected in a 102-hour nonholiday weekend at this time of year.

The tabulation of holiday deaths was kept from 6 p. m. local time last Wednesday to midnight Sunday.

In a preholiday weekend from 6 p. m. Wednesday, Nov. 12, to midnight Sunday, Nov. 16, The Associated Press counted 394 traffic deaths. Other deaths for that period included 32 in fires and 121 in miscellaneous accidents, a total of 547 in all accidents.

The record for over-all accident deaths during a four-day holiday period was set at Christmas 1956 when 884 died. Of these, 707 were traffic victims.

Huge Bomber Said To Pass Test Flights

American Officials Shocked By News, Magazine Declares

WASHINGTON (AP) — Aviation Week magazine said Sunday the Soviet Union completed a nuclear-powered bomber six months ago and has been flying it in the Moscow area for at least two months.

The magazine said a number of foreign observers from Communist and non-Communist countries have observed the test flights. U.S. Air Force and Defense Department officials withheld comment on the article.

An artist's conception published by the magazine depicted the bomber as extremely long and slender, with its delta wings supporting four engines suspended in pods — two nuclear-powered jet engines inboard and two conventional jet engines outboard at the wing ends.

The dimensions given are gigantic: weight, 300,000 pounds; length, 195 feet; wing span, 73 feet; air intakes for the nuclear power plants, 6 feet in diameter; nuclear engine thrust, 70,000 pounds each; turbojet engine thrust for takeoff performance, 35,000 pounds each; length of the wing nacelles housing the nuclear power plants, 36 feet.

Dwarfs Biggest U. S. Plane

By contrast the biggest and heaviest U.S. jet bomber, the eight-engine, 200-ton Boeing B52, is 156½ feet long. The 10-engine Convair B36, no longer in production, is 162 feet long.

"The Russian nuclear-powered bomber is not a flying test bed in the sense that earlier U.S. Air Force and Navy programs had called for installing a nuclear power plant in a conventional aircraft frame such as the B36 or Saunders-Roe Princess flying boat solely for test purposes," Aviation Week said.

"The Soviet aircraft is a prototype of a design to perform a military mission as a continuous airborne alert warning system and missile — launching platform similar to the U.S. Air Force Camel project for which Convair and Lockheed are now making design studies."

Maj. Gen. Donald J. Keirn, U.S. Air Force deputy chief of staff for nuclear weapons development, outlined the Camel concept nuclear powered aircraft program to develop continuous airborne alert, missile launching and low level penetration mission — in a Washington talk last week.

U. S. "Four Years Behind"

Keirn said the United States is working to develop a nuclear-powered plane, possibly similar in weight and size to the B52, capable of carrying a heavy load on no-magic patrol for long periods of time in various parts of the world, and capable of instant reaction to enemy attack by use of missiles.

Aviation Week said the Soviet plane uses the simplest kind of an atomic engine, a direct air cycle nuclear power plant which differs from the ordinary turbojet engine only in that the combustion chamber is replaced by a reactor.

In an editorial on the new Soviet plane, Aviation Week Editor Robert Hotz said the aircraft's appearance "comes as a sickening shock" to dedicated U.S. Air Force and Naval officers, Atomic Energy Commission technicians and industry engineers who have been working on U.S. nuclear projects "despite financial starvation, scientific scoffing and top-level indifference."

Hotz said it is clear that the United States is at least four years behind the Russians in this crucial area. He added that the Soviets can be expected to exploit their lead for political purposes long before the nuclear aircraft has a sound military capability.

Truman, Attlee Urge Internationalization

NEW YORK (UPI) — Former President Harry S. Truman and former British Prime Minister Clement Attlee called Sunday for the internationalization of some of the world's key trouble spots, including Formosa, the Rhine-Danube Canal, the Panama Canal and the Arctic and Antarctic.

The two elder statesmen made their proposal on a nationwide television show that was filmed and recorded before Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's Thanksgiving call for the internationalization of West Berlin.

Neither Truman nor Attlee, now Lord Attlee, mentioned Berlin in their appearance on the Columbia Broadcasting System's "Small World" program, an international conversation directed by Edward R. Murrow.

Mansfield, assistant Democratic floor leader and a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said he and some other Democrats will oppose a billion-dollar increase in foreign aid spending reported under consideration by the Eisenhower administration.

Instead, Mansfield said in an interview he will propose that part of the crop surpluses now in government hands be diverted into foreign aid channels.

"Our farm surpluses now are seven times what they were when Secretary of Agriculture Benson took office," Mansfield said. "We should attack that problem by arranging a system by which we could deliver some of these commodities to hungry peoples rather than giving dollars to their governments."

Mansfield said he believes commodities like wheat could be distributed in this way without disturbing the system by which some agricultural surpluses are being disposed of abroad for local currencies.

"The point would be to get these surplus foods into the hands of the people of the world who have only one meal a day and have no means of buying more food," he said. "If this were done properly, it could become one of the most powerful forces against communism."

Dulles Gets Quiet Mexican Reception

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles received a quiet and orderly reception Sunday night when he arrived to represent the United States at the inauguration of President-elect Adolfo Lopez Mateos.

A Communist-inspired "Dulles go home" campaign failed to get off the ground and authorities said there were no disturbances in the city. The capital and the country was in a fiesta mood for the inauguration Monday.

Palace Says Queen Mother Not Seeing Crystal Gazer

LONDON (AP) — The royal family issued a formal denial Sunday that Queen Mother Elizabeth had been regularly visited by a 41-year-old Irishman who reads the future from a crystal ball.

A statement from Buckingham Palace issued through the British Press Assn. said: "The press secretary to the Queen wishes to inform editors that the story concerning the crystal gazer visiting Queen Elizabeth the Queen Mother at Clarence House is untrue."

A note was attached saying the palace had no objection to the denial being published.

The denial followed a front-page story in the Sunday Pictorial saying the 58-year-old Queen Mother was regularly consulting Tipperary-born crystal-gazer Tom Corbett.

U.S. Has Yet To Contract For A-Plane

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (AP) — America's nuclear aircraft engine is similar to the Russian one.

But America's atomic airplane has not been built.

Russia's A-plane, according to Aviation Week magazine was built six months ago and has been flying for at least two months.

Aviation Week Editor Robert Hotz said the United States is at least four years behind the Russians.

Where does America stand?

For one thing, facilities to test the U.S. engine in conjunction with an air frame — on the ground — are not expected to be finished until next fall.

Those facilities are being built at the Atomic Energy Commission's eastern Idaho testing station west of Idaho Falls.

It was on this testing station in January 1956 that a turbo-jet engine was powered by heat from a nuclear reactor for the first time — at least as far as America was concerned.

The AEC said it was a laboratory model but that it at least demonstrated the feasibility of the engine which was designed by the General Electric Co. at Evendale, Ohio.

That engine has been improved considerably and tested several times since 1956.

Convair and Lockheed have been working on suitable designs for an atomic airplane for several years, mainly at Convair's Ft. Worth, Tex., and Lockheed's Marietta, Ga., facilities.

But the government has not announced the award of any contract to actually build an A-plane.

Snow, Frigid Weather Boost Holiday Deaths

By The Associated Press

Traffic 398
Fires 43
Miscellaneous 103
Total 544

The Thanksgiving holiday, a four-day respite from workaday chores for many Americans, was costly in accident-caused deaths.

To some extent, rigorous weather was a deadly factor. A storm swept from the Rockies to the Atlantic Coast during the period spreading heavy snows. Behind it came record cold for much of the East.

Some motorists died in crashes caused by blinding snowfall, others skidded into fatal smashups on treacherous icy pavement. The sharp cold brought a wave of destructive fires from faulty home heating equipment, and some of these took lives.

There was no official yardstick of Thanksgiving holiday accident death probability. The National Safety Council made no special estimate hinged to holiday conditions for the current week. The council said, however, that 470 deaths in traffic could be expected in a 102-hour nonholiday weekend at this time of year.

The tabulation of holiday deaths was kept from 6 p. m. local time last Wednesday to midnight Sunday.

In a preholiday weekend from 6 p. m. Wednesday, Nov. 12 to midnight Sunday Nov. 16, The Associated Press counted 394 traffic deaths. Other deaths for that period included 32 in fires and 121 in miscellaneous accidents, a total of 547 in all accidents.

The record for over-all accident deaths during a four-day holiday period was set at Christmas 1956 when 684 died. Of these, 707 were traffic victims.

Truman, Attlee Urge Internationalization

NEW YORK (UPI) — Former President Harry S. Truman and former British Prime Minister Clement Attlee called Sunday for the internationalization of some of the world's key trouble spots, including Formosa, the Rhine-Danube Canal, the Panama Canal and the Arctic and Antarctic.

The two elder statesmen made their proposal on a nationwide television show that was filmed and recorded before Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's Thanksgiving call for the internationalization of West Berlin.

Neither Truman nor Attlee, now Lord Attlee, mentioned Berlin in their appearance on the Columbia Broadcasting System's "Small World" program, an international conversation directed by Edward R. Murrow.

Huge Bomber Said To Pass Test Flights

American Officials Shocked By News, Magazine Declares

WASHINGTON (AP) — Aviation Week magazine said Sunday the Soviet Union completed a nuclear-powered bomber six months ago and has been flying it in the Moscow area for at least two months.

The magazine said a number of foreign observers from Communist and non-Communist countries have observed the test flights.

U.S. Air Force and Defense Department officials withheld comment on the article.

An artist's conception published by the magazine depicted the bomber as extremely long and slender, with its delta wings supporting four engines suspended in pods — two nuclear-powered jet engines inboard and two conventional jet engines outboard at the wing ends.

The dimensions given are gigantic: weight, 300,000 pounds; length, 195 feet; wing span, 73 feet; air intakes for the nuclear power plants, 6 feet in diameter; nuclear engine thrust, 70,000 pounds each; turbojet engine thrust for takeoff performance, 35,000 pounds each; length of the wing nacelles housing the nuclear power plants, 36 feet.

Dwarfs Biggest U. S. Plane

By contrast the biggest and heaviest U.S. jet bomber, the eight-engine, 200-ton Boeing B52, is 156½ feet long. The 10-engine Convair B36, no longer in production, is 162 feet long.

"The Russian nuclear-powered bomber is not a flying test bed in the sense that earlier U.S. Air Force and Navy programs had called for installing a nuclear power plant in a conventional aircraft frame such as the B36 or Saabers-Roe Princess living boat solely for test purposes," Aviation Week said.

"The Soviet aircraft is a prototype of a design to perform a military mission as a continuous airborne alert warning system and missile — launching platform similar to the U.S. Air Force Camel project for which Convair and Lockheed are now making design studies."

Maj. Gen. Donald J. Keirn, U.S. Air Force deputy chief of staff for nuclear weapons development, outlined the Camel concept — nuclear powered aircraft program to develop continuous airborne alert, missile launching and low level penetration mission — in a Washington talk last week.

U. S. "Four Years Behind"

Keirn said the United States is working to develop a nuclear-powered plane, possibly similar in weight and size to the B52, capable of carrying a heavy load on no-magic patrol for long periods of time in various parts of the world, and capable of instant reaction to enemy attack by use of missiles.

Aviation Week said the Soviet plane uses the simplest kind of an atomic engine, a direct air cycle nuclear power plant which differs from the ordinary turbojet engine only in that the combustion chamber is replaced by a reactor.

In an editorial on the new Soviet plane, Aviation Week Editor Robert Hotz said the aircraft's appearance "comes as a sickening shock" to dedicated U.S. Air Force and Naval officers, Atomic Energy Commission technicians and industry engineers who have been working on U.S. nuclear projects "despite financial starvation, scientific scoffing and top-level indifference."

Hotz said it is clear that the United States is at least four years behind the Russians in this crucial area. He added that the Soviets can be expected to exploit their lead for political purposes long before the nuclear aircraft has a sound military capability.

Court Decision Near On Whether Pilots May Strike Airline

By The Associated Press

Strikes by machinists and flight engineers continued to immobilize two major airlines over the weekend as the hour neared for court decision on whether pilots will be allowed to strike against a third line.

Eastern and Trans World Airlines have been shut down since last Monday by a strike of the International Assn. of Machinists. Eastern also has been struck by the Flight Engineers International Union.

Eastern Sunday proposed arbitration to the Flight Engineers, and suggested the union meet with airline officials in Miami Monday morning to discuss it.

Meanwhile, a National Mediation Board official reported some progress in Kansas City talks between the machinists and Trans World.

The nation's biggest airline, American, will attempt in federal court in New York Monday to make permanent a temporary injunction against a strike by the Air Line Pilots Assn.

In another New York court hearing a judge will be asked to decide whether Pan American World Airways employees can be restrained from refusing to work overtime.

A week-long strike of some 30 stewardesses continued against Lake Central Airlines, which serves Ohio, Indiana, and parts of Pennsylvania, Illinois and Michigan.

State's Holiday Traffic Death Toll Reaches 7

By The Associated Press

A Calvert Countian killed Sunday in a head-on automobile collision boosted Maryland's highway traffic toll for the long Thanksgiving weekend to seven.

John Chalupa, 33, of Huntingtown, was pronounced dead on the scene after his car and one driven by James Estep collided on Maryland 2 near Sunderland. Estep was admitted to Calvert County Hospital in Prince Frederick with face cuts. A passenger in his car, Ernest E. Hawkins, 18, Negro of Owings, was admitted to the hospital with concussion, cuts and shock. Both were in good condition.

State Police, unable to question the survivors immediately, did not know the cause of the accident. No charges were filed.

Other Maryland fatalities of the four-day-plus weekend, which for statistical purpose began at 6 p. m. Wednesday and ended at midnight Sunday, were:

Archibald Stirling, 22, Baltimore, killed in a head-on crash near Towson Saturday.

Mychaljo Weltschko, 46, and his wife, Helena, 52, killed when their car left Maryland 350 near Salisbury Thursday night.

Richard L. Atkinson, 32, Richmond, Va., killed in a two-car crash on Maryland 246 in Lexington Park, St. Marys County, Thursday.

Edward Piper, 51, Baltimore, struck by a car while crossing a South Baltimore street Thursday.

Robert White, 35, Negro, Chester, Pa., fatally injured Wednesday night near Joppa, Md., in the collision of his car and a tractor-trailer.

Huge Banana-Handling Facility To Be Dedicated

BALTIMORE (AP)—A 5½-million dollar banana-handling facility will be dedicated Monday by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and the United Fruit Co.

The 10-acre facility with four giant shipside cranes and more than a mile of specially designed conveyors is aimed at providing efficient and damage-free handling of the transfer of fruit from ocean vessel to land transportation.

Baltimore is the fourth largest port of entry in the nation for bananas. Last year more than 4 million stems came in through the port.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter continued to make good progress Sunday in his recovery from the mild heart disturbance which hospitalized him last Monday, his doctors reported.

Il Duce's Son To Stand Trial

FLORENCE, Italy (AP)—Italian newspapers said Sunday Vittorio Mussolini, who fled to Argentina after his father—Il Duce—was overthrown as Italy's dictator, is coming back to defend himself against a charge of deserting the Italian air force during World War II.

Vittorio, who now lives in Buenos Aires, was said to have sent word to his Italian lawyer, Rinaldo Taddei, that he will appear when the case comes up before a Florence military court, probably in January.

The charge dates back to 1943 when Benito Mussolini was overthrown. At the time Vittorio, an air force captain, was on leave.

Instead of returning to his unit, he disappeared and eventually showed up in Argentina.

Crippled Airliner Lands At London

LONDON (AP)—A Pan American Airways DC7C airliner touched down Sunday after crossing half the Atlantic on three engines.

Fire engines and ambulances stood by as the four-engined airliner came in from New York with 69 passengers and a crew of six aboard. The plane made a normal landing.

Its No. 3 engine went out after a refueling stop at Gander, Nfld., but the pilot decided to keep coming rather than turn back into a strong tail wind.

State Joins Fight Against "Staph" Infection

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Maryland Department of Health is setting up a committee to help hospitals throughout the state fight the serious problem of staphylococcus, a fatal epidemic among newborn babies in a Houston hospital.

There were other fatalities among newborns in Dallas.

In children, "staph" can cause pneumonia, which is similar to pneumonia and usually causes permanent lung damage.

"Staph" wound infections have become a matter of great concern to hospitals since the wounds are slow to clear up.

Many persons can carry the organism without having any symptoms themselves.

Court Decision Near On Whether Pilots May Strike Airline

By The Associated Press

Strikes by machinists and flight engineers continued to immobilize two major airlines over the week-end as the hour neared for court decision on whether pilots will be allowed to strike against a third line.

Eastern and Trans World Airlines have been shut down since last Monday by a strike of the International Assn. of Machinists. Eastern also has been struck by the Flight Engineers International Union.

A week-long strike of some 30 stewardesses continued against Lake Central Airlines, which serves Ohio, Indiana, and parts of Pennsylvania, Illinois and Michigan.

The Eastern arbitration proposal was made by board Chairman Eddie Rickenbacker in a telegram to Jack Robertson, Flight Engineers president, who is in Miami.

Rickenbacker said that in view of a recent court decision clearly allowing a strike against a third line, "proposes that all remaining lawful issues in dispute be submitted to arbitration by a neutral referee."

He proposed that Robertson meet in Miami with J. H. Brock, an Eastern vice president at 10 a.m. Monday.

The court decision to which Rickenbacker referred was a ruling by a U.S. district court in Miami that the airline has a right to require its flight engineers on jet planes to take basic pilot training. The union plans an appeal.

State Joins Fight Against "Staph" Infection

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Maryland Department of Health is setting up a committee to help hospitals throughout the state fight the serious problem of staphylococcus and streptococcus infections.

It had appeared that through the use of antibiotics both streptococcus and staphylococcus had been brought in check.

That wasn't the case. "Staph" developed strains that were resistant to antibiotics. A new antibiotic would work for a time but eventually resistance appeared.

The new Maryland committee being formed will meet regularly to study the latest findings in the battle against "staph" and pass them down through the medical ranks.

A number of Baltimore hospitals already have set up special committees on infections. The state health department is hoping all hospitals in the State will do the same.

"Staph" is a particular problem around hospitals because the organism is easily spread. Staphylococcus aureus is the most virulent form. It has caused a fatal epidemic among newborn babies in a Houston hospital. There were other fatalities among newborns in Dallas.

In children, "staph" can cause pneumonia, which is similar to permanent lung damage.

"Staph" wound infections have become a matter of great concern to hospitals since the wounds are slow to clear up.

Many persons can carry the organism without having any symptoms themselves.

The committee to be established by the health department will include 12 to 15 members representing all the leading medical, nursing, hospital and public health organizations in the state, as well as medical schools.

The department hopes that committees set up in individual hospitals will receive reports of every kind of "staph" infection in their institutions, not only in patients but also in personnel.

The world's four largest islands are Greenland, New Guinea, Borneo and Madagascar, according to the National Geographic Society.

Man Is Found Fatally Shot At Parents' Home

CAMBRIDGE (AP)—A 36-year-old Philadelphia machinist was found fatally shot at his parents' home Sunday, a rifle nearby and a bullet wound in his temple.

ZOO DOCTOR

"HERE'S YOUR MEDICINE," Dr. Robert Wagers treats a macaw that suffered an injured beak at the Baltimore zoo.

In his line of work at the Baltimore zoo, Dr. Robert P. Wagers could get bitten or mauled, and wind up in a hospital. But nothing has happened to this zoo doctor in nine years. Nothing, that is, but a black eye from a usually placid swan.

As health guardian for scores of animals, reptiles, and fowl, Dr. Wagers must treat the likes of hippopotami, lions, polar bears, leopards, gorillas and elephants. On the other hand, his work also calls for trimming the beaks of delicate birds.

Dr. Wagers finds that many of the animals balk at treatment of any kind. But there are various ways of making these ex-jungle inhabitants behave while they take their medicine. He may use a lasso on the skittish, goat-like aoudad or a squeeze cage to box in a lion. At times he uses a needle, tranquilizing pill or sleeping pills.

Lions, says Dr. Wagers, take pills without a growl. They normally gulp their food and accept a tiny pellet of medicine in a chunk of meat readily. Leopards, on the other hand, are cautious, and sniff at their meat before eating.

His greatest challenge, says the doctor, was in setting the tendon on a kangaroo with a leg deformity. Kangaroos become panicky when you handle them, he explained.

Dr. Wagers at work among his zoo patients is pictured here.

Jackie, a young gorilla, gets a dose of medicine. The stuff is camouflaged in baby food that the gorilla is used to.

No monkey will let a bandage alone, so that's why the vet put a cardboard collar around this mangabey.

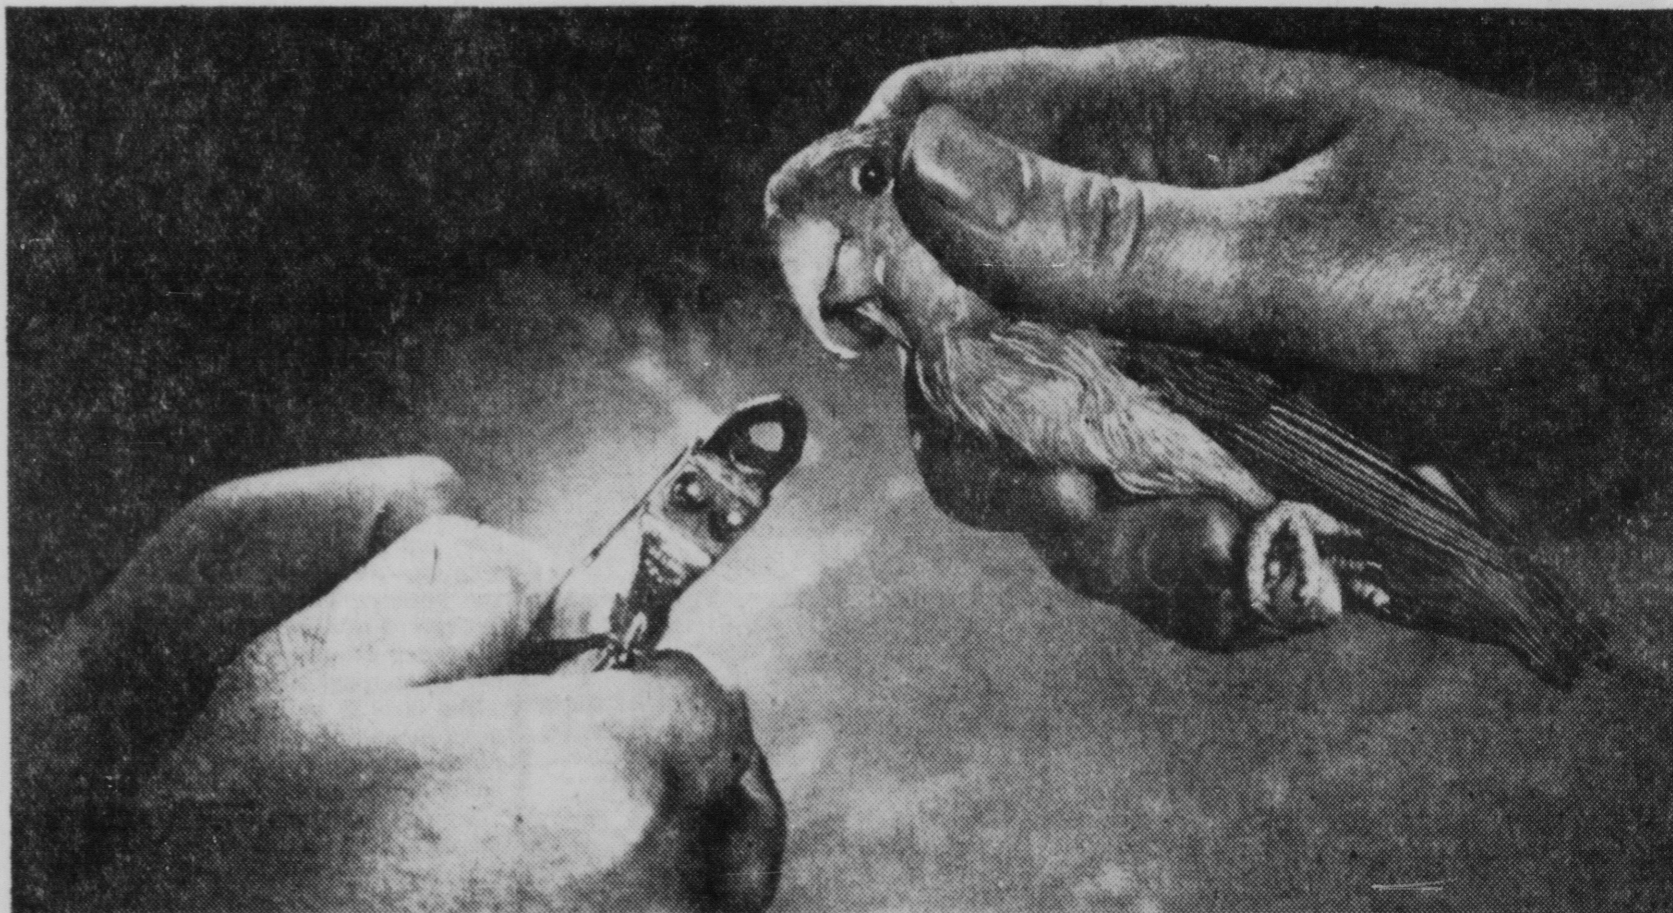

Medicine for the bear is put in honey and smeared on its paws from a safe place outside the cage.

Attendants hold down an aoudad while the vet clips its hooves.

Working from a safe position, Dr. Wagers gives the hippopotamus a dental examination.

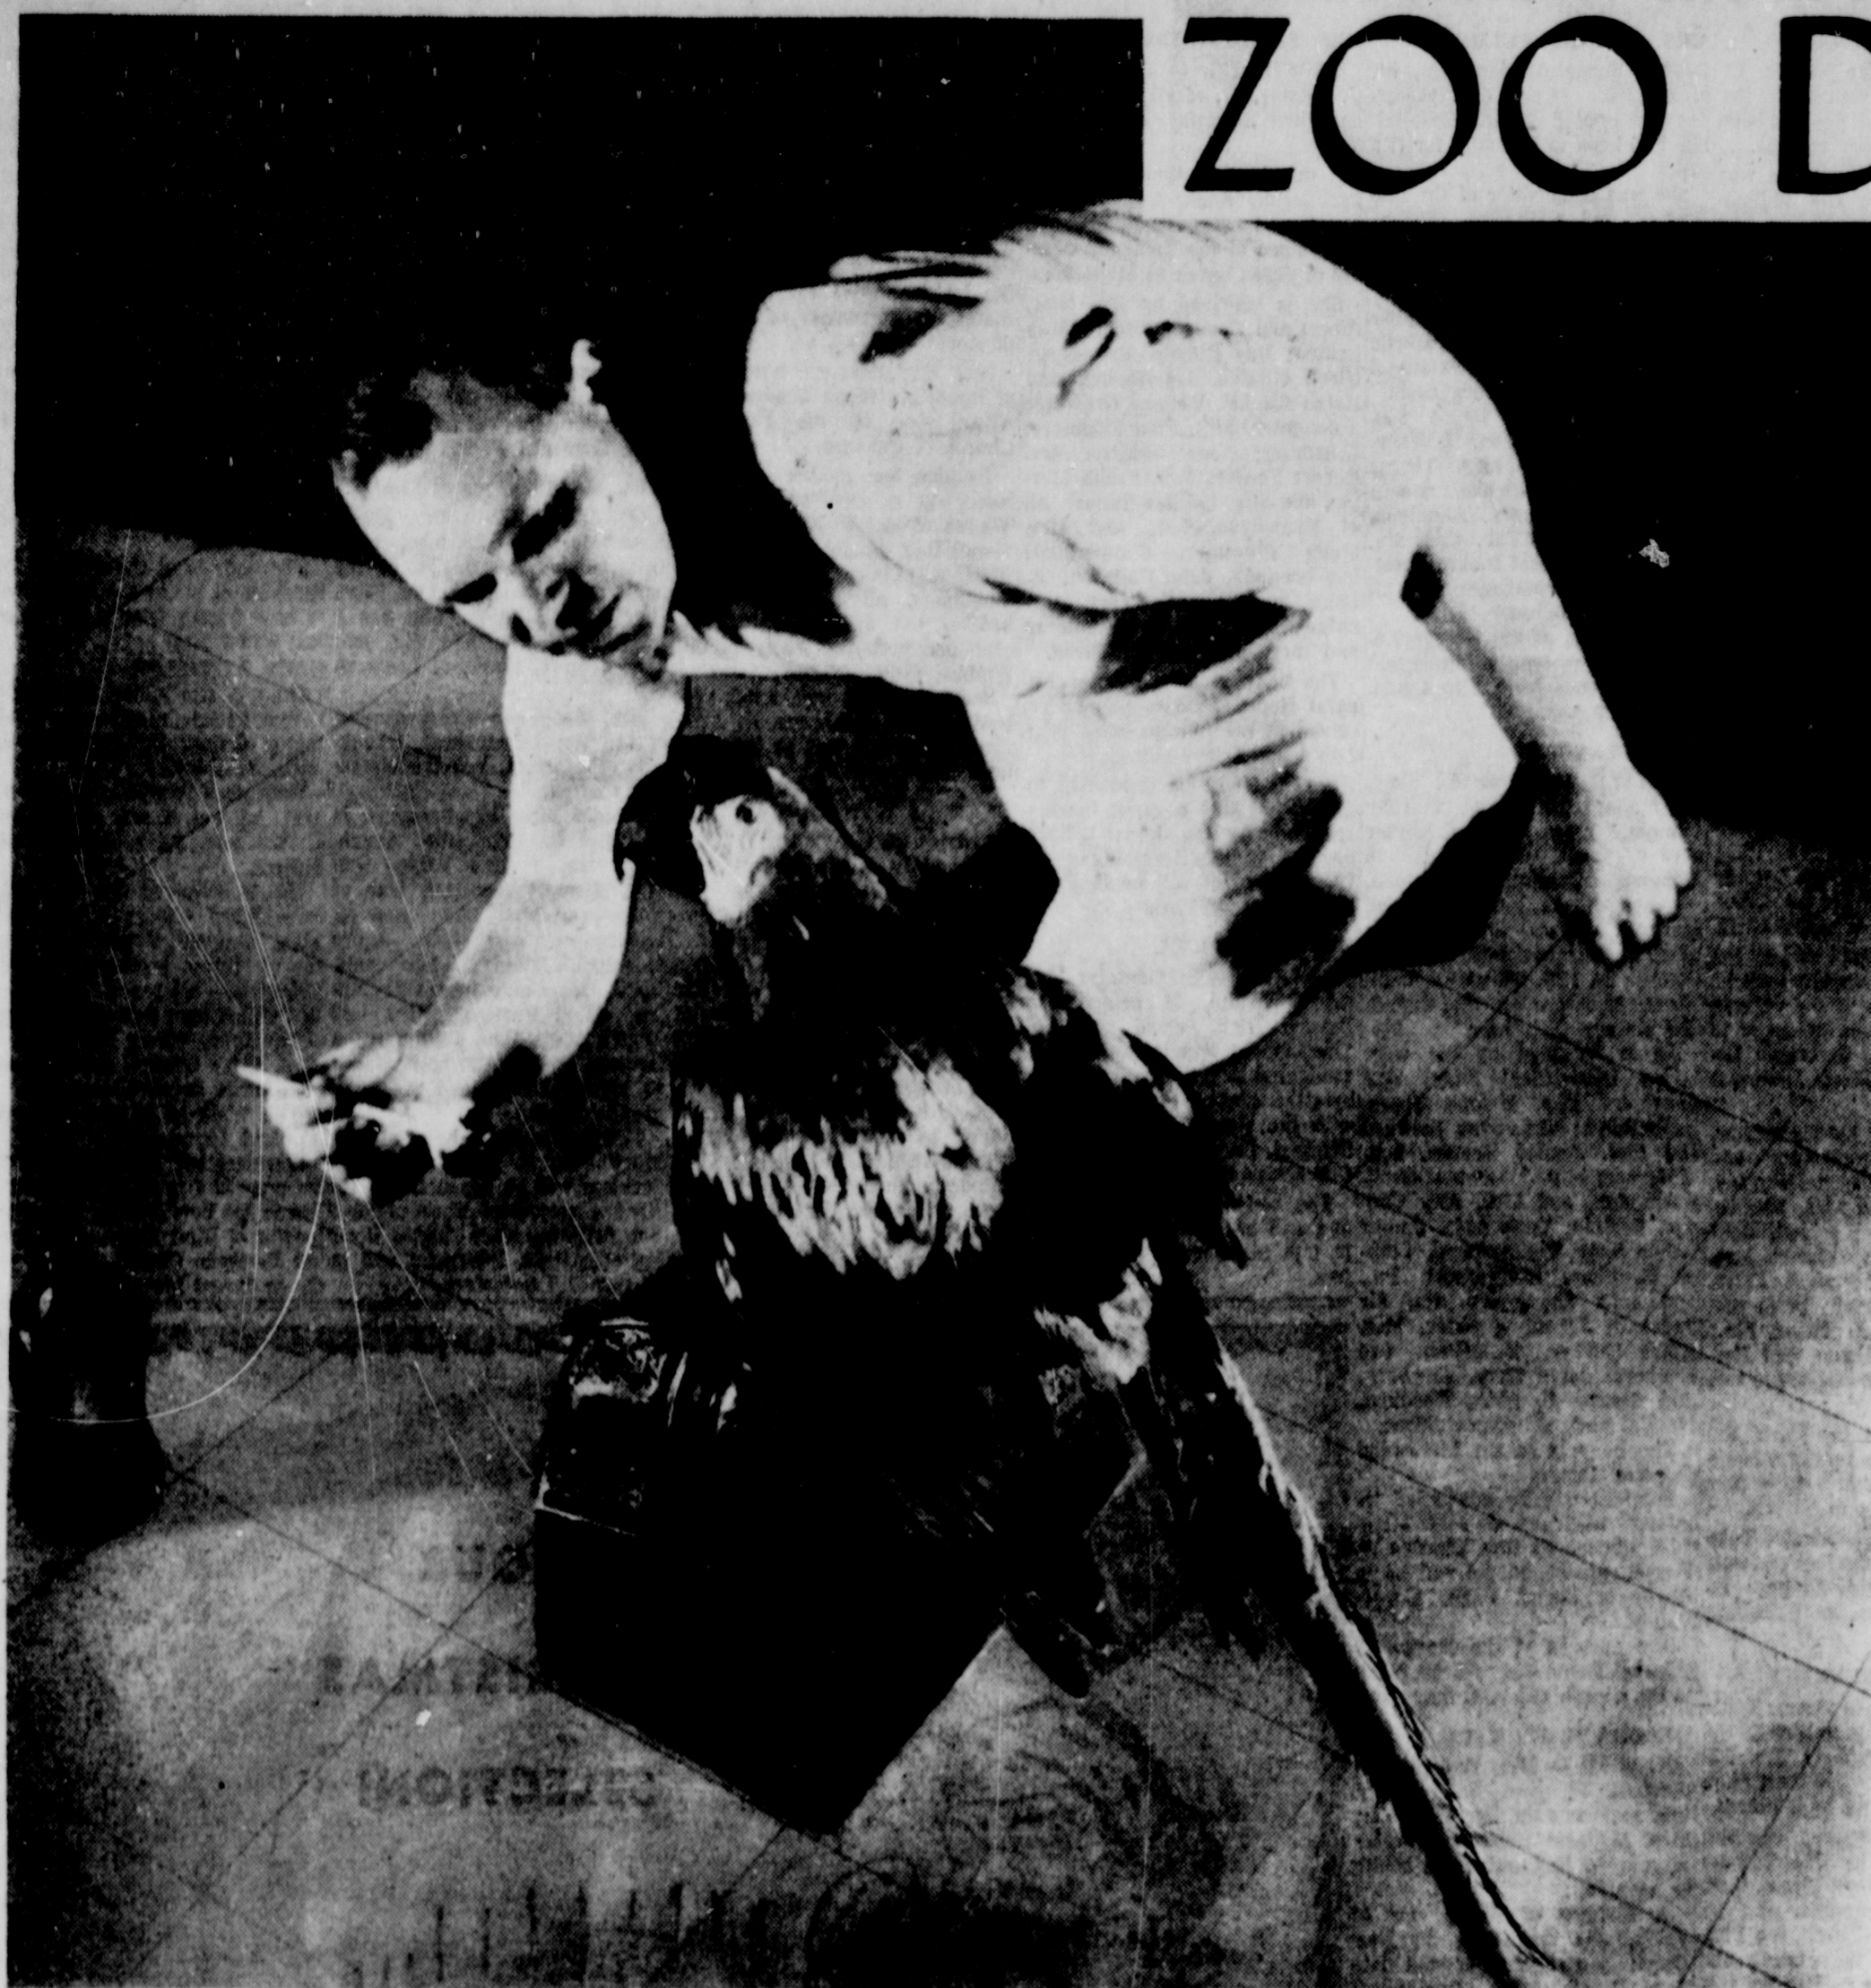

Like the hooves of animals, beaks of birds sometimes have to be clipped. Here a lovebird is getting a trim.

Can New Congress
Save Some Money?

One of the Hoover Commission's major recommendations was addressed to a situation that has just been the subject of a statement by U. S. Senator Harry F. Byrd of Virginia. Senator Byrd pointed to the vast amount of spending authority that will be in the hands of federal agencies in the present fiscal year.

Of authorized expenditures aggregating $147 billion, the Senator says $72 billion represents holdover grants from previous years. Approximately $26 billion of that carryover can be spent directly out of the public treasury, completely bypassing any controls by Congress.

It was these funds, beyond Congress' control, that the Hoover Commission put its finger on as offering the possibility of important economies. The commission called for what it termed "annual accrued expenditure budgeting."

In simple terms that meant that Congress would, in a given year, appropriate only for the goods and services the government receives in that year.

The object was to provide for annual reviews of long-term projects so that Congress could at any time cancel or modify them and thus could divert funds from one undertaking to another. When the commission made its proposal, it estimated that carryover funds held for continuing undertakings totaled $70 billion.

Congress eventually acted to provide for annual project reviews but the practice of lump sum appropriations was left standing.

The carryovers account for the $26 billion which, the Virginia Senator says, can be expended without knowledge of Congress. But in the future Congress will be empowered to make regular reviews of holdover funds in federal agencies' hands. And with a sum like $72 billion involved, the savings seen by the Hoover group seem easily within the realm of possibility.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

The Barbarian At The Gate

I once heard a man make this comparison. He said: The Romans at least knew that the barbarians were at their gates; we are conscious of nothing.

Americans dislike gloom. They dislike gloomy thoughts. They dislike believing the worst or even unpleasantly. This is a nation of optimists with a long tradition to justify that we are indeed a fortunate people. Also, Americans, with a measure of reason, believe that mechanically and technologically, they are superior to any nation on earth, which they show by their high standard of living.

Realism, however, demands that we face the fact that we have a "Cold War" which has protracted itself now for a sufficiently long period to justify taking it seriously, to study its meaning and to assume that our defense must be now. Our government is at any rate organizing to meet the situation, but it has failed to prepare the people for it and for the consequences that face us. After all, in our kind of country, unless the people support the government, it can have no policy and no purpose.

The weakness of the politician is that he still believes that he can both lead a horse to water and make him drink. The course of events since 1945 shows that Americans can be apathetic about their own country when they lose confidence in the leadership of government.

We are at war. The Cold War is costly in wealth, in time, and its consequences may be devastating. It is not as costly in human life as a shooting war. But should we lose the Cold War we might lose our national existence or we might be forced to fight a shooting war too late for it to be to our advantage. The planners believe, however, that they are now reaching the time when the non-Soviet world recognizes the perils we face and therefore the kind of coalition is possible which may save us. Their calculations are based on the assumption that the Soviet side is making and will make as many mistakes as our side does and that if mistakes are balanced there is still hope.

What we need is the kind of candor which is rare among political leaders. Our prospect of success against the Soviet world depends upon our technological advance. They must not catch up to us, because if they do, or if they pass us, we shall be defeated without battle.

It therefore becomes necessary for us to undertake basic steps to meet this situation:

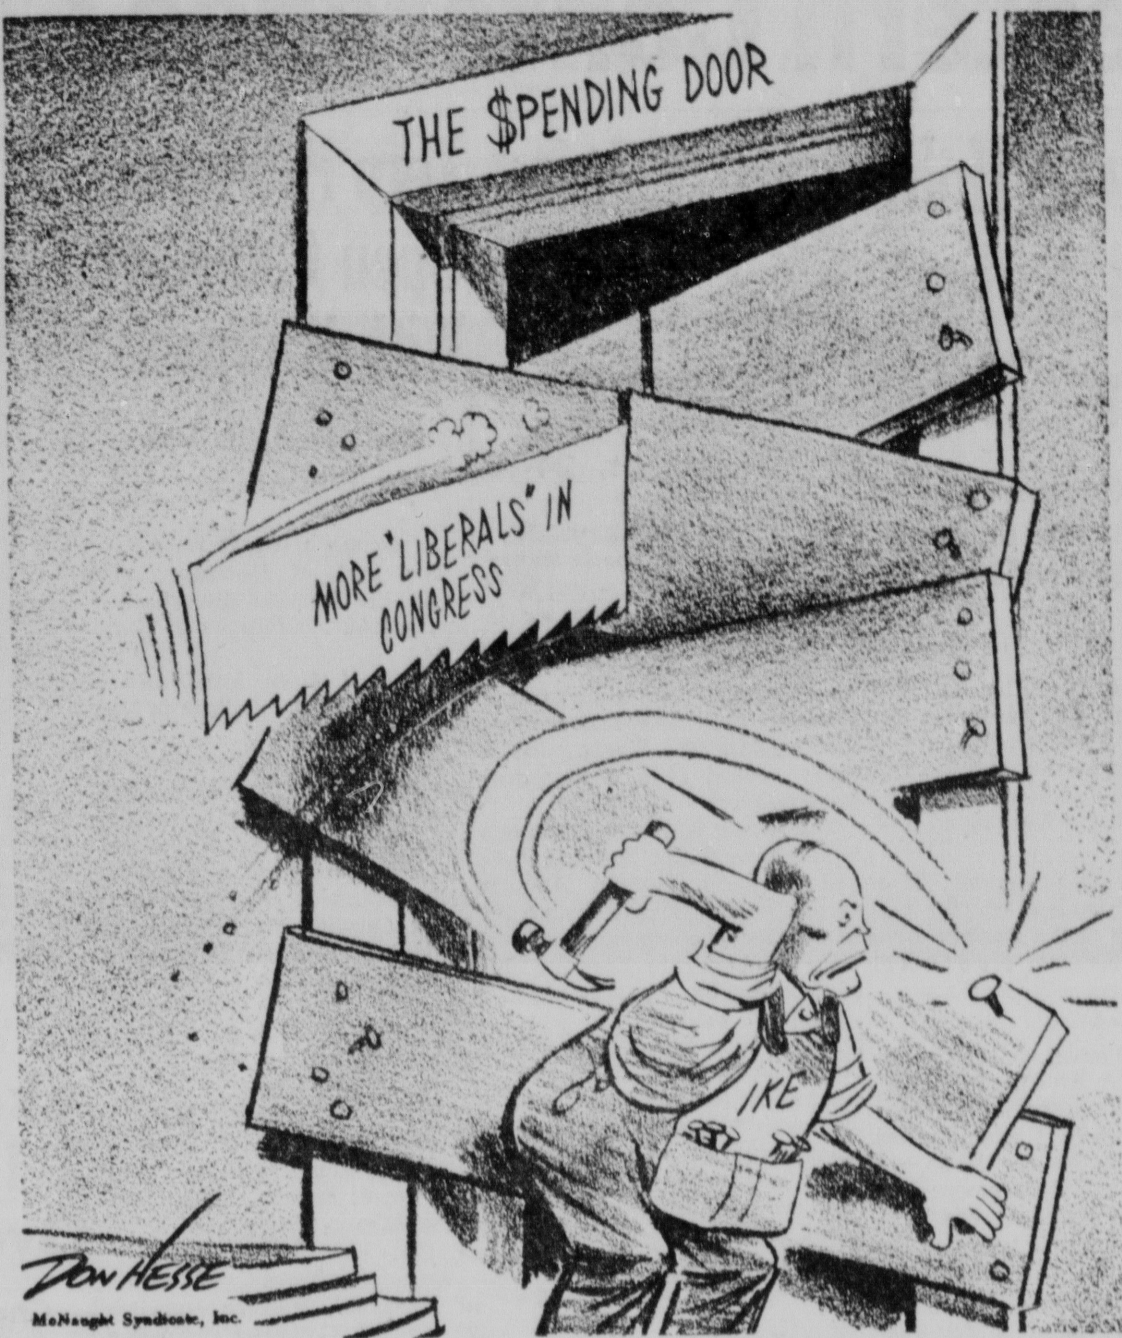

1. It will require a total reorganization of our educational procedures and facilities from the primary school to post graduate work in the university. We cannot afford the waste of fads and frills. Our educators must get down, to bed rock, teaching hard courses and requiring students to get good marks for hard work, and throwing out all others who can find other work to do. Unless we key up our educational system, we shall not be producing enough thinkers to make it possible for us to have a chance. This requires not only knowledge but honesty of purpose.

2. We need to rearrange and coordinate our various governments. Federal, state and municipal, to cut out all waste. We have no room for waste. We have no time for wastrels. The politicians who cannot adjust to government without waste, without graft and corruption and the nonsense that is called "politics," are doing immense damage to this country. We are not rich any longer and cannot afford to pay the fancy price which the politicians charge us for letting them govern us.

3. We need to fight inflation at home so that we are not defeated by our own means. The cost of government, of living, of schooling, of everything is so high and is rising so rapidly that the value of the American dollar is diminishing at home and abroad. It is that diminishing value of the dollar that gives our enemy an advantage over us. It is necessary for government to meet that situation even if it means restoring controls.

An honest statement by the President to the people, well-documented, will have heartaches later. President Eisenhower can do it without such risks as politicians do not like to take. After all, he can never stand for re-election and need not fear the political consequences of the truth.

A Sharper Saw Than Last Season

Brigadier Kassem, The History Maker Of Iraq

By Joseph Alsop

BAGHDAD, Iraq
In any generation, very few men genuinely make history. Furthermore, very few history-makers strike one as really well cast for their role. But this tiny and interesting group now has a new recruit, in the person of the leader of the Iraqi revolution and present Prime Minister of this deeply convulsed country, Brig. Abdel Karim Kassem.

What the new history-maker had to say about his policies when he received this reporter can be rather shortly summarized. Brig. Kassem's first aim, and just about his only aim for the present, is what he called "improving the condition of the people." For this purpose, "a timetable has been set."

"I invite you to come back to my country in three years," he said, "and then you will see what changes have taken place."

In this manner, without letting himself be pinned down, he suggested the nature of the timetable. He wants time "to improve the condition of the people," in turn, because he does not share the popular modern view that a people sunk in illiteracy and gripped by misery can easily look beyond their present wretchedness, to make wise decisions about their country's future.

"The people must decide the future of our country," he said, "and for this decision, I am only one among many. But before they decide, our people must at least be self-confident, and they must at least not be hungry."

From this approach, in turn, all other features of the Kassem policy obviously flow. He wants to be "truly neutral, friendly to all nations," but he will not tolerate "any interference from any other nation," whether of the conflict of the Arab nationalist ultras who want "union now" with Egypt, and the Communists who hope to have Iraq for themselves in the end; but the Kassem government is "determined to stand above politics and party," while once again refusing to tolerate "interference."

In short, Iraq's new leader wants to be let alone to get his first big task completed. But can he hope to be let alone while he "uses the wealth of this rich country to improve the people's condition, so that they may choose their own future?" In other words, can he control the grim powerful forces that are not going to let him alone if they can help it?

That is the key question concerning Abdel Karim Kassem, the key question concerning Iraq, and perhaps the key question concerning the future of the whole vital, disturbed Middle East. No one can answer the question positively, but I must confess that a long talk with Brig Kassem has made me immeasurably more hopeful about the probable answer.

Outwardly, at least, Iraq's new leader is a singularly impressive figure, erect, spare and lean, with a fine face dominated by large dark, brooding eyes. He can be almost mystically fervent when he speaks of his "first task," but he wholly lacks the tendency of most Arab politicians to lapse into easy, empty oratory. He has a warmth and charm that are immediately apparent, but his warmth is not the calculated glow, his charm is not the plump, planned ingratiating of the other Arab leader he must naturally be compared with, Egypt's Gamal Abdel Nasser.

He speaks pleasantly, in a low, even but musical voice, twisting his long hands when a point troubles him. He smiles gently when he is asked a hard question, and sometimes he is sardonically humorous, as when he was pressed about the drive for "union now" with Egypt. He replied:

"On this matter, too, the people must decide our future when the time comes. For the present, which he thought was bound for Australia. It wound up in a Chinese port. Next time he tries to grab a free trip he'd better learn the difference between East and South.

New Adhesive Foam Mends Fractures Quickly

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

A chemical that cements together broken bones has been used with good to excellent results by Dr. Michael P. Mandarine and Dr. Joseph Salvatore of the Hahnemann Medical College in Philadelphia. The product — MRD-535, or Ostamer — shows promise of help for elderly persons with hip fracture as well as for professional athletes and others in whom a quicker use of the limb is desirable.

The substance is a rigid polyurethane foam that was employed originally as an adhesive in various industrial processes.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

Joe Le Page, at the Detroit Athletic Club, told of an adventure he encountered while fishing through the thick ice of Lake Superior in mid-winter. He was out for lake trout which make their home in very deep water.

Le Page was using some 200 feet of hand line and, when he hooked a trout, he virtually froze all 10 fingers hauling his catch to the surface. Then he hit on an ingenious plan.

Joe fastened the top end of the fishing line to his well-trained dog's collar, and placed a piece of fine, fresh meat some distance from the hole in the ice where he was fishing. The dog eyed the meat anxiously, but wouldn't make a move toward it until his master gave the signal.

There is no doubt as to its adhesive qualities. It has a bond strength of 170 to 190 pounds and tensile strength of 800 pounds per square inch.

Operation is needed to use this substance. The bones must be visible and free of blood and other debris before the chemical is spread on the broken ends. The product must be fixed against the surfaces to be held or bridged together.

The material usually sets within 20 to 40 minutes and is completely hard in 18 to 24 hours but the individual is not advised to stand or walk for another 24 hours. This is known as the curing time. The ends of the fractured bone must be bonded together thoroughly before weight bearing is attempted.

MRD-535 does not become static like the glue or cement utilized to join two pieces of wood or bricks. The polyurethane foam sticks first and then acts as a framework over and into which new bone grows. Meanwhile, the chemical compound is absorbed slowly by the body and disappears completely within 12 months. During this time, the gap is bridged by the bony tissues and the union is as solid as the Rock of Gibraltar.

More studies will be needed to determine the long term effects of this method. So far, good results have been maintained in humans up to 22 months, and in animals up to 27 months. This is one of the first breakthroughs in this field and may prove to be the answer to the fracture that fails to unite.

TOMORROW: Multiple origins of headache.

Rabble Rouser John Kasper Starts
New Hitlerian Party In America

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—How does hate get unleashed in the United States? What induces people to bomb schools and places of worship? Why do people adopt the tactics of Hitler in a country which fought a long and bloody war to wipe out Hitlerism?

These are questions many Americans are asking in the wake of the bombing of approximately 50 schools and places of worship. This writer, who has visited some of the dynamited schools and synagogues, has been trying to get the answer. The results of this investigation are so important that they cannot be squeezed into a single column, but here is the first installment.

It involves a secret meeting which John Kasper, the race baiter, recently held in the dingy apartment of Edgar Johnston at 1103 Bellevue St. in southeast Washington. Six of his most trusted followers attended.

The meeting lasted four hours. During it, Kasper proclaimed a new underground movement fashioned after Hitler's and vowed to deport every Negro to Africa and strip all Jews of their American citizenship. He would require Jews to report with other aliens to a "polizei."

"We're going to adhere to Hitler's policies," the swaggering hawknosed Kasper harangued. "Fanatic as it may sound, everyone else is wrong and we're right!"

Kasper began the meeting by telling about his trial in Clinton, Tenn., for stirring up racial riots.

Floyd Fleming, ringleader of the White Citizens movement on the eastern seaboard, asked jovially why Kasper had blown up the school. He cracked back that he would stash some dynamite in Johnston's apartment, so their host would be blamed and locked up.

"I'm glad someone bombed the school," Kasper added seriously, "because it will give other people ideas."

Seven Founded Nazis

He recalled that only seven were present at the founding of Hitler's Nazi Party. Then he counted heads and announced dramatically: "We have seven now!"

He said the seven would be the "hard core" of the new movement with headquarters in the nation's capital. He reserved the leadership for himself and stressed that authority would go downward and responsibility upward. His title would be "director," he said.

Gene Collton, a handsome, carpentering youth, asked how long Kasper had been thinking about this movement.

"Eight to twelve years," replied the self-styled Director. He had concluded that "coalitions, combinations, and cooperative efforts" must fail, as outlined in Hitler's "Mein Kampf," because sooner or later the compromises dissolve.

Collton suggested adopting a uniform dress, such as a white vest, with the leader wearing a white coat.

At one point, Kasper declared that he abhors violence generally but not particularly.

"Effective violence in selected instances," suggested Johnston. Then the subject of cross-burnings came up.

"When we burned those crosses on the lawns of particular individuals, you saw the response picked up in the papers across the country," boasted Johnston. "You mean you had something to do with that, Ed?" laughed Collton.

"We shouldn't say this out loud."

Jim Bishop: Reporter

Stream of Consciousness: A thousand little motorcycles of thought race around the inside of my head, squealing on the turns and throwing the gravel of nonsense in the air. Some are good thoughts, worth following for one more lap; some are silly. My friend Stan Mockford will soon be paroled from Atlanta Penitentiary. His little girl is now five.

He did time in Alcatraz too. Stan is a writer. He has much to learn, but he proved that he wants to go straight by writing two novels in jail. His agent, Maria Horch, has high hope for his work. He writes:

"I have finally been able to admit that the pride which has prevented me, in the past, from turning to someone for advice in time of difficulty, has been a false pride. Real pride is not compatible with deliberate wrongdoing." He's in for interstate car theft.

My daughter Ginny and her husband drove to the Eatontown Drive-In. Holding hands on a front seat sounds romantic, but when I think of the infant twins in their cage on the backseat, the scene sounds like a Saturday Evening Post cover. Speaking of twins, Mrs. Marion Henson of Long Branch was telling me that, when she was pregnant, her doctor said: "I hear two heartbeats."

"I have news for you," snapped Mrs. Henson. "One of them is mine."

Two weeks ago, I started the final phase of the next book, "Time of the Traitors." It is a story about the atom spies — the Rosenbergs, Dr. Klaus Fuchs, Alan Nunn May — and the research required three years. Now the cross-indexing of the 12 volumes of notes will take six weeks. After that, the writing of the book will keep me busy until spring. When it is published in the fall, it could lay an egg. C'est le book.

When Jack Paar was in California, I watched most of the shows. They were among his best. The brightest guest, of course, was Oscar Levant, who is reduced to making a living from his neurosis and his sparkling insolence. On my screen, he seemed sicker physically than mentally. If he gets well, he's out of work.

I'm not much of a nightclub man,

we should be careful of the walls," cautioned Fleming, a small nervous man who spoke in spurts and emphasized his points with jerky gestures. "If you have something like this in your mind and you want to do it, you do it. But you don't discuss it."

The Poet Pound

Ezra Pound, the American turncoat and great friend of Kasper's, had earlier suggested a name for their movement which Kasper sheepishly admitted sounded "corny."

"But if you are going to be radical, go all the way radical," he declared cavalierly. "Anyway, the name isn't as foolish as it sounds."

What Ezra Pound had proposed calling the movement was "Wheat In Our Bread" — or, to shorten it, the WHIB Party. He got the idea from a group of British housewives who had demanded that the government put the wheat vitamins back in their bread.

Kasper assured his followers that Pound had extraordinary perception.

"What has won me to him is his unflinching earnestness and ability to be right. Whatever he has told me has turned out to be true," Kasper said. He claimed Pound had been railroaded into St. Elizabeth's by three Jewish psychiatrists.

Fleming suggested another name for the new party — National Reform. But Kasper objected that there were too many nationalist and reform parties. He also brushed aside the idea of reviving the old German-American Bund.

Though of German descent, he decreed: "No foreign ideologies should be allowed to confuse the public. My aim is to reach the masses of common people."

Kasper also promised a new flag and new monetary system for the country when he seizes power.

The greatest miscarriage of justice in history, he claimed, was the hanging of Hitler's henchmen. But their spirit, he suggested, goes marching on.

PERIODIC VOMITING

A. M. C. writes: Every four or five months my 6 year old boy gets attacks of vomiting after eating. These attacks last three or four days. He does not have fever at these times. I've had him to the doctor, who can find nothing wrong. This worries me and I would like your suggestions on the cause.

REPLY

Periodic vomiting is not normal. Among the possible causes are emotional upsets, food allergy, and indigestion due to a gastrointestinal lesion. He should be X-rayed.

PETIT MAL

C. F. writes: Can epilepsy be so mild that a seizure consists of staring into space for a moment or two?

REPLY

Yes. In petit mal, the individual stops, stares into space for a moment, comes to, and continues with what he was doing when the attack came on. There are several good remedies for this condition.

ENLARGED HEART

N. Z. writes: Is it dangerous to neglect an enlarged heart?

REPLY

Yes, because the organ has enlarged to overcome a handicap. Overexertion increases this handicap, and to compensate, the heart enlarges more and more. Obviously, there is a limit to the reserve power of the old ticker.

In the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Can New Congress Save Some Money?

One of the Hoover Commission's major recommendations was addressed to a situation that has just been the subject of a statement by U. S. Senator Harry F. Byrd of Virginia. Senator Byrd pointed to the vast amount of spending authority that will be in the hands of federal agencies in the present fiscal year.

Of authorized expenditures aggregating $147 billion, the Senator says $72 billion represents holdover grants from previous years. Approximately $26 billion of that carryover can be spent directly out of the public treasury, completely bypassing any controls by Congress.

It was these funds, beyond Congress' control, that the Hoover Commission put its finger on as offering the possibility of important economies. The commission called for what it termed "annual accrued expenditure budgeting."

In simple terms that meant that Congress would, in a given year, appropriate only for the goods and services the government receives in that year.

The object was to provide for annual reviews of long-term projects so that Congress could at any time cancel or modify them and thus could divert funds from one undertaking to another. When the commission made its proposal, it estimated that carryover funds held for continuing undertakings totaled $70 billion.

Congress eventually acted to provide for annual project reviews but the practice of lump sum appropriations was left standing.

The carryovers account for the $26 billion which, the Virginia Senator says, can be expended without knowledge of Congress. But in the future Congress will be empowered to make regular reviews of holdover funds in federal agencies' hands. And with a sum like $72 billion involved, the savings seen by the Hoover group seem easily within the realm of possibility.

These Days

The Barbarian At The Gate

I once heard a man make this comparison. He said: The Romans at least knew that the barbarians were at their gates; we are conscious of nothing.

Americans dislike gloom. They dislike gloomy thoughts. They dislike believing the worst or even unpleasantly. This is a nation of optimists with a long tradition to justify that we are indeed a fortunate people. Also, Americans, with a measure of reason, believe that mechanically and technologically, they are superior to any nation on earth, which they show by their high standard of living.

Realism, however, demands that we face the fact that we have a "Cold War" which has protracted itself now for a sufficiently long period to justify taking it seriously, to study its meaning and to assume that our defense must be now. Our government is at any rate organizing to meet the situation, but it has failed to prepare the people for it and for the consequences that face us. After all, in our kind of country, unless the people support the government, it can have no policy and no purpose.

The weakness of the politician is that he still believes that he can both lead a horse to water and make him drink. The course of events since 1945 shows that Americans can be apathetic about their own country when they lose confidence in the leadership of government.

We are at war. The Cold War is costly in wealth, in time, and its consequences may be devastating. It is not as costly in human life as a shooting war. But should we lose the Cold War we might lose our national existence or we might be forced to fight a shooting war too late for it to be to our advantage. The planners believe, however, that they are now reaching the time when the non-Soviet world recognizes the perils we face and therefore the kind of coalition is possible which may save us. Their calculations are based on the assumption that the Soviet side is making and will make as many mistakes as our side does and that mistakes are balanced there is still hope.

What we need is the kind of candor which is rare among political leaders. Our prospect of success against the Soviet world depends upon our technological advance. They must not catch up to us, because if they do, or if they pass us, we shall be defeated without battle.

It therefore becomes necessary for us to undertake basic steps to meet this situation:

1. It will require a total reorganization of our educational procedures and facilities from the primary school to post graduate work in the university. We cannot afford the waste of fads and frills. Our educators must get down, to bed rock, teaching hard courses and requiring students to get good marks for hard work, and throwing out all others who can find other work to do. Unless we key up our educational system, we shall not be producing enough thinkers to make it possible for us to have a chance. This requires not only knowledge but honesty of purpose.

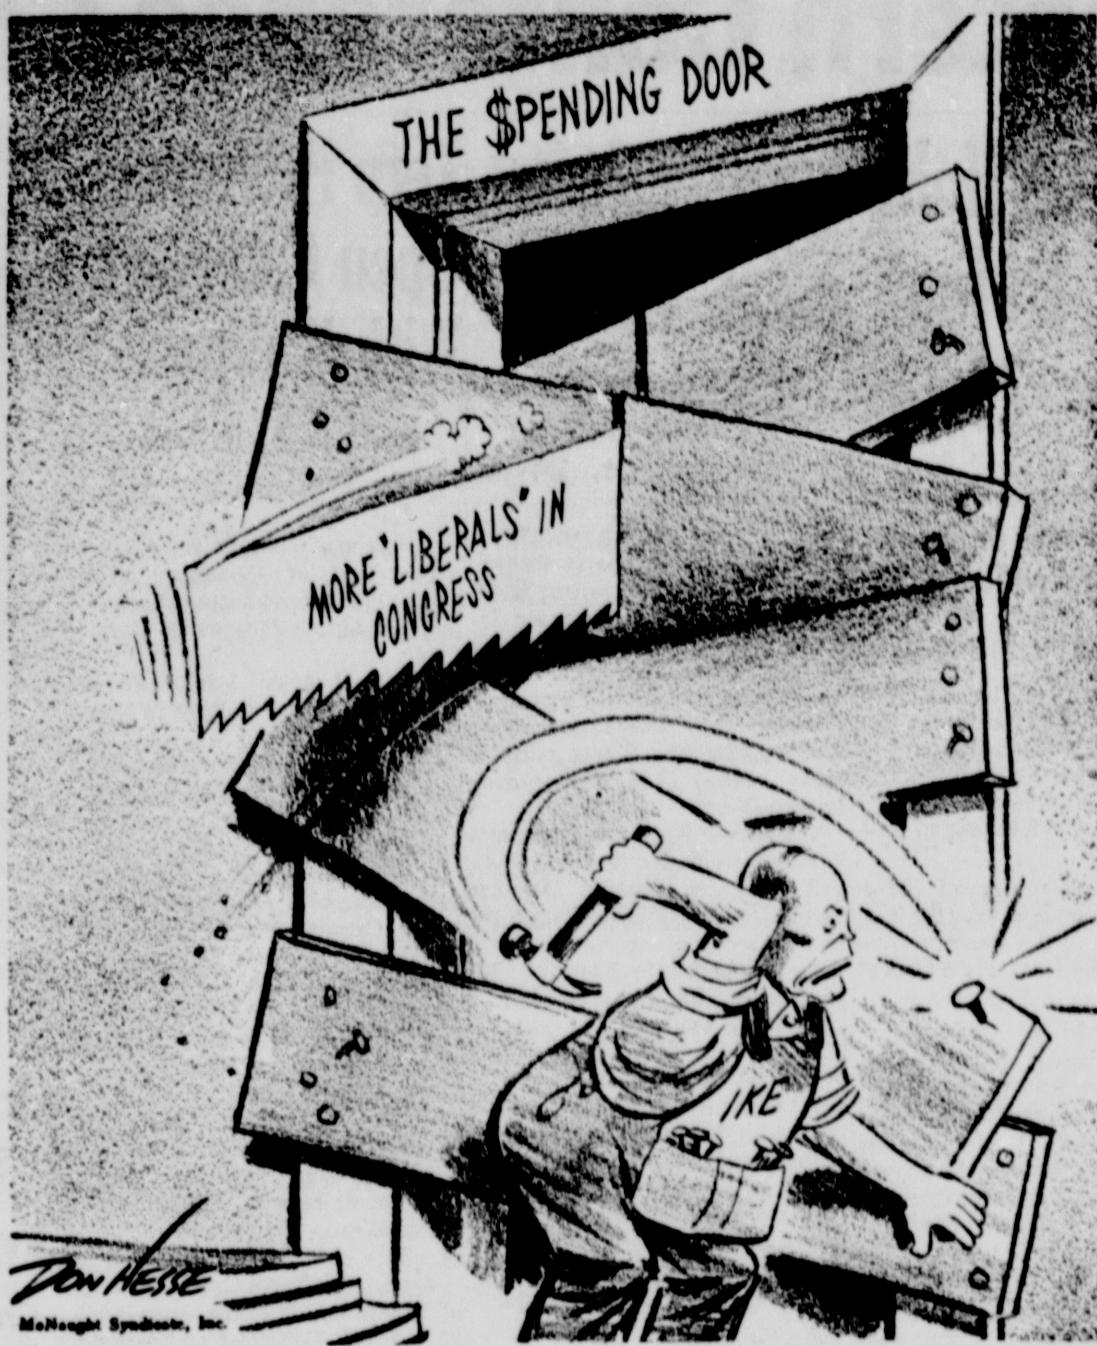

2. We need to rearrange and coordinate our various governments, Federal, state and municipal, to cut out all waste. We have no room for waste. We have no time for wastrels. The politicians who cannot adjust to government without waste, without graft and corruption and the nonsense that is called "politics," are doing immense damage to this country. We are not rich any longer and cannot afford to pay the fancy bills which the politicians charge us for letting them govern us.

3. We need to fight inflation at home so that we are not defeated by our own means. The cost of government, of living, of schooling, of everything is so high and is rising so rapidly that the value of the American dollar is diminishing at home and abroad. It is that diminishing value of the dollar that gives our enemy an advantage over us. It is necessary for government to meet that situation even if it means restoring controls.

An honest statement by the President to the people, well-documented, will have heartaches later. President Eisenhower can do it without such risks as politicians do not like to take. After all, he can never stand for re-election and need not fear the political consequences of the truth.

A Sharper Saw Than Last Season

Brigadier Kassem, The History Maker Of Iraq

By Joseph Alsop

BAGHDAD, Iraq

In any generation, very few men genuinely make history. Furthermore, very few history-makers strike one as really well cast for their role. But this tiny and interesting group now has a new recruit, in the person of the leader of the Iraqi revolution and present Prime Minister of this deeply convulsed country, Brig. Abdel Karim Kassem.

What the new history-maker had to say about his policies when he received this reporter can be rather shortly summarized. Brig. Kassem's first aim, and just about his only aim for the present, is what he called "improving the condition of the people." For this purpose, "a timetable has been set."

"I invite you to come back to my country in three years," he said, "and then you will see what changes have taken place."

In this manner, without letting himself be pinned down, he suggested the nature of the timetable. He wants time "to improve the condition of the people," in turn, because he does not share the popular modern view that a people sunk in illiteracy and gripped by misery can easily look beyond their present wretchedness, to make wise decisions about their country's future.

"The people must decide the future of our country," he said, "and for this decision, I am only one among many. But before they decide, our people must at least be self-confident, and they must at least not be hungry."

From this approach, in turn, all other features of the Kassem policy obviously flow. He wants to be "truly neutral, friendly to all nations," but he will not tolerate "any interference from any other nation," whether of the conflict of the Arab nationalist ultras who want "union now" with Egypt, and the Communists who hope to have Iraq for themselves in the end; but the Kassem government is "determined to stand above politics and party," while once again refusing to

In short, Iraq's new leader wants to be let alone to get his first big task completed. But can he hope to be let alone while he "uses the wealth of this rich country to improve the people's condition, so that they may choose their own future?" In other words, can he control the grim powerful forces that are not going to let him alone if they can help it?

That is the key question concerning Brigadier Kassem, the key question concerning Iraq, and perhaps the key question concerning the future of the whole vital, disturbed Middle East. No one can answer the question positively, but I must confess that a long talk with Brig Kassem has made me immeasurably more hopeful about the probable answer.

Outwardly, at least, Iraq's new leader is a singularly impressive figure, erect, spare and lean, with a fine face dominated by large dark, brooding eyes. He can be almost mystically fervent when he speaks of his "first task," but he wholly lacks the tendency of most Arab politicians to lapse into easy, empty oratory. He has a warmth and charm that are immediately apparent, but his warmth is not the calculated glow, his charm is not the plump, planned ingratiation of the other Arab leader he must naturally be compared with, Egypt's Gamal Abdel Nasser.

He speaks pleasantly, in a low, even but musical voice, twisting his long hands when a point troubles him. He smiles gently when he is asked a hard question, and sometimes he is sardonically humorous, as when he was pressed about the drive for "union now" with Egypt. He replied:

"On this matter, too, the people must decide our future when the time comes. For the present,

Rabble Rouser John Kasper Starts New Hitlerian Party In America

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—How does hate get unloosed in the United States? What induces people to bomb schools and places of worship? Why do people adopt the tactics of Hitler in a country which fought a long and bloody war to wipe out Hitlerism?

These are questions many Americans are asking in the wake of the bombing of approximately 50 schools and places of worship. This writer, who has visited some of the dynamited schools and synagogues, has been trying to get the answer. The results of this investigation are so important that they cannot be squeezed into a single column, but here is the first installment.

It involves a secret meeting which John Kasper, the race baiter, recently held in the dingy apartment of Edgar Johnston at 1103 Bellevue St. in southeast Washington. Six of his most trusted followers attended.

The meeting lasted four hours. During it, Kasper proclaimed a new underground movement fashioned after Hitler's and vowed to deport every Negro to Africa and strip all Jews of their American citizenship. He would require Jews to report with other aliens to a "polizei."

"We're going to adhere to Hitler's policies," the swaggering hawknosed Kasper harangued. "Fanatic as it may sound, everyone else is wrong and we're right!"

Kasper began the meeting by telling about his trial in Clinton, Tenn., for stirring up racial riots.

Floyd Fleming, ringleader of the White Citizens movement on the eastern seaboard, asked jovially why Kasper had blown up the school. He cracked back that he would stash some dynamite in Johnston's apartment, so their host would be blamed and locked up.

"I'm glad someone bombed the school," Kasper added seriously, "because it will give other people ideas."

Seven Founded Nazis

He recalled that only seven were present at the founding of Hitler's Nazi Party. Then he counted heads and announced dramatically: "We have seven now!"

He said the seven would be the "hard core" of the new movement with headquarters in the nation's capital. He reserved the leadership for himself and stressed that authority would go downward and responsibility upward. His title would be "director," he said.

Gene Colton, a handsome, carping youth, asked how long Kasper had been thinking about this movement.

"Eight to twelve years," replied the self-styled Director. He had concluded that "coalitions, combinations, and cooperative efforts" must fail, as outlined in Hitler's "Mein Kampf," because sooner or later the compromises dissolve.

Colton suggested adopting a uniform dress, such as a white vest, with the leader wearing a white coat.

At one point, Kasper declared that he abhors violence generally but not particularly. "Effective violence in selected instances," suggested Johnston. Then the subject of cross-burnings came up.

"When we burned those crosses on the lawns of particular individuals, you saw the response picked up in the papers across the country," boasted Johnston. "You mean you had something to do with that, Ed?" laughed Colton.

"We shouldn't say this out loud."

We should be careful of the walls," cautioned Fleming. A small nervous man who spoke in spurts and emphasized his points with jerky gestures. "If you have something like this in your mind and you want to do it, you do it. But you don't discuss it."

The Poet Pound

Ezra Pound, the American turn-of-coat and great friend of Kasper's, had earlier suggested a name for their movement which Kasper sheepishly admitted sounded "corny."

"But if you are going to be radical, go all the way radical," he declared cavalierly. "Anyway, the name isn't as foolish as it sounds."

What Ezra Pound had proposed calling the movement was "Wheat In Our Bread"—or, to shorten it, the WHIB Party. He got the idea from a group of British housewives who had demanded that the government put the wheat vitamins back in their bread.

Kasper assured his followers that Pound had extraordinary perception.

"What has won me to him is his unflinching earnestness and ability to be right. Whatever he has told me has turned out to be true," Kasper said. He claimed Pound had been railroaded into St. Elizabeth's by three Jewish psychiatrists.

Fleming suggested another name for the new party—National Reform. But Kasper objected that there were too many nationalist and reform parties. He also brushed aside the idea of reviving the old German-American Bund.

Though of German descent, he decreed: "No foreign ideologies should be allowed to confuse the public. My aim is to reach the masses of common people."

Kasper also promised a new flag and new monetary system for the country when he seizes power.

The greatest miscarriage of justice in history, he claimed, was the hanging of Hitler's henchmen. But their spirit, he suggested, goes marching on.

Stream of Consciousness: A thousand little motorcycles of thought race around the inside of my head, squealing on the turns and throwing the gravel of nonsense in the air. Some are good thoughts, worth following for one more lap; some are silly. My friend Stan Mockford will soon be paroled from Atlanta Penitentiary. His little girl is now five.

He did time in Alcatraz too. Stan is a writer. He has much to learn, but he proved that he wants to go straight by writing two novels in jail. His agent, Maria Horch, has high hope for his work. He writes: "I have finally been able to admit that the pride which has prevented me, in the past, from turning to someone for advice in time of difficulty, has been a false pride. Real pride is not compatible with deliberate wrongdoing." He's in for interstate car theft.

My daughter Ginny and her husband drove to the Eatontown Drive-In. Holding hands on a front seat sounds romantic, but when I think of the infant twins in their cage on the backseat, the scene sounds like a Saturday Evening Post cover. Speaking of twins, Mrs. Marion Henson of Long Branch was telling me that, when she was pregnant, her doctor said: "I hear two heartbeats."

"I have news for you," snapped Mrs. Henson. "One of them is mine."

Two weeks ago, I started the final phase of the next book, "Time of the Traitors." It is a story about the atom spies—the Rosenbergs, Dr. Klaus Fuchs, Alan Nunn May—and the research required three years. Now the cross-indexing of the 12 volumes of notes will take six weeks. After that, the writing of the book will keep me busy until spring. When it is published in the fall, it could lay an egg. C'est le book.

When Jack Paar was in California, I watched most of the shows. They were among his best. The brightest guest, of course, was Oscar Levant, who is reduced to making a living from his neurosis and his sparkling insolence. On my screen, he seemed sicker physically than mentally. If he gets well, he's out of work.

I'm not much of a nightclub man, but I went to the Latin Quarter to listen to Anna Alberghetti and remained to look at her. She is beautiful. Not just attractive—beautiful. It is easy to spot the art lovers. When an artist comes on, they shove everyone else so loudly that nothing can be heard.

Christmas is almost here. I hope that most of us remember that it is not a commercial occasion; it is the birthday of Christ, and therefore, a holy day.

On the 27th, our family is leaving for Key Biscayne Hotel for a week. The last time I was in Miami was in 1925. I was 17 and out of a job. This time, Gayle will go with me, also Ginny and Charlie and the twins. I expect to see some of the night life, and will report the good and the bad when I get home.

There is a good deal of Smithfield in this family. At a Banquet luncheon, Bugs Baer introduced my father, who was at a table down front. Pop stood and faced Mr. Baer for his bow. The spotlight was on his back and nobody could see him. Someone told him to turn around and face the audience. When he did, and he heard the thunder of applause, he bowed so long I thought he'd never sit.

When it died, Mr. Baer said: "My son and daughter are here, and I would introduce them but I'm afraid they'd resent it." A wave of laughter swept the grand ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria. Mr. Baer shrugged. "They resented everything else," he said.

I must make an appointment with Kathryn Murray, the fascinating little grandmother who runs a string of nationwide dance studios, and a television show. Her story ought to be worth a column.

Joan Sullivan and Imelda Kaiser stopped by for dinner. Joan gave Imelda a book to read. "It's a bad novel," I said, although nobody asked me. "The bride gets shot on page 420."

Miss Sullivan looked at me with real horror. "You shouldn't have told her," she said. "How would you like it if I went around telling everybody how 'The Day Lincoln Was Shot' comes out?"

A thousand little thoughts racing around . . .

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

Joe Le Page, at the Detroit Athletic Club, told of an adventure he encountered while fishing through the thick ice of Lake Superior in mid-winter. He was out for lake trout which make their home in very deep water.

Le Page was using some 200 feet of hand line and, when he hooked a trout, he virtually froze all 10 fingers hauling his catch to the surface. Then he hit on an ingenious plan.

Joe fastened the top end of the fishing line to his well-trained dog's collar, and placed a piece of fine, fresh meat some distance from the hole in the ice where he was fishing. The dog eyed the meat anxiously, but wouldn't make a move toward it until his master gave the signal.

Le Page waited till a trout bit on his line, then commanded his pooch, "Go fetch!" The dog lit out, pulling the fish line behind him—and all the master had to do was take his catch off the hook!

Baltimore Cops NFL Western Conference Championship

Colts' Late Rally Sinks 49ers, 35-27

Overcome Deficit Of 20 Points With Four Touchdowns

By GEORGE BOWEN

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Baltimore Colts, trailing by 20 points at the half, reared back for four touchdowns in the last two quarters for a 35-27 victory over the San Francisco 49ers and the Western Conference championship of the National Football League Sunday.

The Colts clinched their first conference title with two more games to play in Los Angeles and San Francisco. Their victory Sunday coupled with the 24-10 loss by the Chicago Bears to the Pittsburgh Steelers gave Baltimore a three-game lead.

Trail 27-7 At Half
The Colts, in the NFL only six seasons, trailed 27-7 at halftime and looked shoddy in the bargain. It was a different Baltimore story in the second half.

They smothered the 49er offense and steamed up their own for a blazing three touchdowns in the last quarter. Memorial Stadium really rocked when Lenny Moore weaved his way 73 yards for a touchdown that tied the score 27-

Game Statistics
BALTIMORE (AP)—Statistics of the San Francisco 49ers-Baltimore Colts game:

49ers	Colts
First downs	22

Passing yardage	158
Passes	17-33
Passes intercepted by	1
Punts	3-40
Fumbles lost	0
Yards penalized	50

27. Steve Myhra's fourth place kick conversion gave the Colts the edge for the first time.

Quarterback John Unitas tossed a 7-yard pass to end Ray Berry for the last touchdown. It was the 23rd straight game in which Unitas threw at least one touchdown pass. It tied him with Cecil Isbell for the all-time record in that department of the NFL.

A feeling that the Baltimore hubbub was about to burst went through the stadium when the 49ers swept 80 yards for a touchdown after the opening kickoff and piled on three more in the second period.

But the positions were exactly reversed in the second half. The Colts charged 62 yards to score after the kickoff. Unitas completed four passes for 51 yards in the drive and Alan Ameche plunged less than a yard for the touchdown.

Ameche Scores Twice
A 50-yard pass from Unitas to end Jim Mutscheller got the Colts moving again at the end of the third quarter and Ameche plunged for his second touchdown on the second play of the fourth period.

A couple of minutes later, Moore broke loose for his dazzling run that took him down the sidelines, back to the center of the field and then straight ahead to avoid a series of tacklers.

Unitas's passing and Joe Perry's running moved the 49ers to their first touchdown, the quarterback sneaking the last yard.

Unitas evened it up by running three yards to score at the end of a 65-yard Baltimore drive as the first quarter closed.

The San Francisco splurge in the second period started after Bert Rechichar had missed a 38 yard field goal for the Colts with the score tied 7-7. The 49ers moved 80 yards quickly for a touchdown to go in front. Tittle completed four passes that accounted for 61 yards and he ran the last three.

Blocks Point Try
Ordell Brase of the Colts blocked Gordy Soltau's attempted conversion and the lost point loomed large in the last quarter.

San Francisco had to travel only 27 yards for their next score. Bob Tonniff jarred the ball loose from Unitas and it rolled back 20 yards to the Baltimore goal before the Colts recovered it. Ray Brown punted out only 27 yards. A Tittle to Clyde Conner pass was good for 20 yards and Hugh McElhenney finally scored from a yard out.

Unitas, passing from his own five, gave the 49ers their third touchdown in the period. The ball deflected, Matt Hazeltine gathered it in on the 13 and the line-backer lugged it over the goal.

San Francisco 7 20 0 0—27
Baltimore 7 0 21—35
San Francisco: TD, Tittle 2 (1 plunge, 3 run), McElhenney (1 plunge), Hazeltine (13 intercepted pass, PAT, Saltair 3).

Baltimore: TD, Unitas (4 run), Ameche 2 (1 plunge, 1 plunge), Moore (73 run), Berry (7 pass from Unitas), PAT, Myhra 5.

Ole Miss, Florida, Hardin-Simmons Also Are Selected
By ED CORRIGAN
Associated Press Sports Writer
All the major (and most minor) bowls have been settled lock, stock and barrel, "the" game—Army-Navy—is over, and for almost everyone, the 1958 college football season is history.

Almost everyone, but not quite. Next Saturday, four diehards go at it and then the regular season will be resumed, but definitely. Boston College plays Holy Cross and Oregon engages Miami in regionally televised games.

None of the four are near the top of the heap, so neither game will have any significance nationally.

Army Licks Navy
When Army licked Navy, 22-6, in Philadelphia Saturday to complete its first season since 1949 without a loss, and the Air Force Academy, Clemson, Mississippi, Florida and Hardin-Simmons were tapped for bowl berths, the campaign, for all intents and purposes, ended.

As for the bowls, the Air Force Academy decided to try its luck in the Cotton Bowl after licking tough Colorado of the Big Eight, 20-14. Cotton Bowl officials had been hoping for two weeks they could land the AFA. The other team will be Texas Christian Southwest Conference champion.

Cotton, which doesn't exactly make a habit of appearing in big bowl games, earned a shot at Louisiana State in the Sugar Bowl by dropping Furman, 36-19. The Tigers, Atlantic Coast Conference champions, have made only three bowl appearances since 1940. They won all three, by the way.

Choose Gator Teams
The Gator Bowl played it very close to the vest and waited until the last possible moment to pick its two teams, Mississippi and Florida.

Ole Miss shut out Mississippi State, 21-0, and Florida just did get past Miami, Fla., 12-9. It was a real chiller for Florida, because Coach Bob Woodruff had been told that the bid was dependent on a victory over Miami.

Hardin-Simmons, which won the Border Conference championship Friday, turning back New Mexico A&M, 26-20, snapped up an offer to meet Skyline Champion Wyoming in the Sun Bowl. This, too, was expected once Hardin-Simmons got past the Aggies.

The Bowl Picture
So here is how the major bowl picture shapes up:
Rose Bowl at Pasadena, Calif.—Iowa (7-1) vs California (7-3)
Sugar Bowl at New Orleans—Louisiana State (10-0) vs Clemson (8-2)
Orange Bowl at Miami—Oklahoma (9-1) vs Syracuse (8-1)
Cotton Bowl at Dallas—Texas Christian (8-2) vs Air Force Academy (9-0-1)
Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, Fla.—Florida (6-3-1) vs Mississippi (6-4)
Sun Bowl at El Paso, Tex.—Wyoming (7-3) vs Hardin-Simmons (6-4)
Tangerine Bowl (Orlando, Fla.)—Officials are up in the air over issuing invitations. The University of Buffalo turned down a spot because the two Negroes on its squad would not have been permitted to play.

Louisiana State finished operations as the only undefeated undefeated major team in the land. Right behind were Army, Air Force Academy, and Florida just did get past Miami, Fla., 12-9. It was a real chiller for Florida, because Coach Bob Woodruff had been told that the bid was dependent on a victory over Miami.

Win Game With Two TDs In 4th Quarter; Jim Brown Stopped

By LARRY FRIEDMAN

CLEVELAND (AP)—The Cleveland Browns rallied for their fourth-period touchdowns today on Milt Plum's passing and the running of Lew Carpenter for a 21-14 victory over the Washington Redskins.

The triumph preserved Cleveland's one-game lead over the New York Giants in the Eastern Division of the National Football League.

Brown Bottled Up
The Washington defensive line bottled up Jim Brown, Cleveland's record busting fullback. He gained only 12 yards in 11 attempts and was held scoreless for the second straight week. But Carpenter took up the slack with 95 yards in 14 rushes—including 54 yards on the final touchdown drive.

Carpenter scored once while Plum passed 29 yards to Ray Renfro for one touchdown. The Cleveland quarterback jumped one foot for the winning marker with just over two minutes remaining in the game.

Washington's Don Bosseler, who scored the game's first touchdown, and Ed Sutton ran well through the Cleveland defense. Quarterback Ed LeBaron's faking three Brown defenders out of position several times to permit the inside smashes of Bosseler and Sid Watson.

LeBaron completed 13 passes in 18 attempts for 160 yards including a seven-yard scoring toss to Watson.

Plum Is Standout
Plum, former Penn State star, gained 206 yards with 10 completions in 19 attempts. He ran 22 yards on a left-end sweep to keep Cleveland's winning drive going when the team was faced with third down and 20 yards to go on their own 41.

Washington: TDs, Bosseler (4 run), Watson (7 pass from LeBaron), PAT, Baker 2.
Cleveland: TDs, Renfro (29 pass from Plum), L. Carpenter (3 run), Plum (plunge), PAT, Groza 3.

Deer Season Opens Today
Garrett Record 698 And Allegany's 623

Maryland's six-day deer season gets under way today and attention as usual will focus on the kill reported in Garrett and Allegany counties, which run 1-2 as the state's best counties for hunting whitetails.

Garrett hit an all-time high last year when gunners bagged 698 deer but the severe winter that followed resulted in the death of no less than 500 animals that perished in the deep snows and this may reduce the bag considerably.

In 1946 when checking stations were established, only 85 bucks were bagged in Allegany County. In 1952 the total hit 232, jumped to 502 in 1955, increased to 591 in 1956 and reached an all-time high of 623 last year. Washington County's 289 in 1957 also is a new record.

Nimrods Get Choice Of Buck Or Doe For 3 Days In Mineral Co.

Mineral County is among 21 of the 39 in the state of West Virginia in which nimrods may take either buck or doe during the first three days of the six-day deer season which opens today. During the final three days, only bucks are legal kills in these counties, as they are the entire season in the other 18 counties.

Seven checking stations in Mineral County are as follows:
Bailey Esso Station, Keyser; Wagner and Beam Store, Fort Ashby; Fout's Service Station, New Creek; Stag's Store, Headsville; Umstot and Wilson Store, Burlington; Poling's Store, Ridgeley; and Wolfe's Store, Elk Garden.

Giants Stay Alive, Turn Back Eagles

Win Strange Game Of Fumbles, Pass Interceptions, 24-10

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—Don Heinrich, an able substitute for injured Charley Conerly, Sunday outpitched Philadelphia's Norm Van Brocklin in a strange game of fumbles and pass interceptions and the New York Giants gained a badly needed 24-10 victory over the Eagles.

The Giants had to win this one to stay alive in the National Football League's Eastern Division race. The victory gave them a 7-3 record for the season and left them a chance to overtake the pace-setting Cleveland Browns.

Heinrich went all the way at offensive quarterback, threw two touchdown passes and set up the other Giant touchdown and a field goal with his effective if sometimes uncertain pitching. He didn't get much mileage out of the New York running game, but Frank Gifford came through with a six-yard scoring run and a couple of key gains in the final quarter.

Van Brocklin, a threat every time he had the ball, passed to Bobby Walston for a touchdown that gave the Eagles a short-lived first quarter lead. But he had three long ones intercepted when they really hurt.

NFL Player Draft Is Set For Today
PHILADELPHIA (AP)—National Football League clubs gathered here Monday for their preliminary player draft with the last place Green Bay Packers owning first pick from the college grab bag.

The pro teams will draw four rounds of their annual 30 round draft once Commissioner Bert Bell bangs the gavel opening the meeting. In all, 48 players will be selected by the 12 teams.

Following the draft, Bell will preside over an executive session expected to take up such important matters as the growing financial burden of operating a professional football team and a threat of "extreme measures" by the players association unless certain demands are dealt with promptly. Owners and-or general managers of contending teams will set up playoff details in case there are ties in either or both divisions of the two conference league.

Unlike other mammals, when bats are at rest, their body temperature quickly drops to that of the air around them. As a result their energy requirements are much reduced.

Rams Defeat Cards, 20-14
Aerial Attack Decides Battle

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP)—Bill Wade flipped two touchdowns passes to Leon Clarke in the last half Sunday to give the Los Angeles Rams an uphill 20-14 victory over the Chicago Cardinals.

Paige Cothren booted 14 and 12-yard field goals for the Rams in the first half which the Cards offset with Lamar McHan's 30-yard scoring toss to rookie John Crow in the second quarter. Bobby Joe Conrad added the extra point and the Cards led 7-6 at the half.

The McHan-Crow combination clicked early in the third period to highlight a 71-yard touchdown drive in 9 plays. McHan's 5-yard shovel pass to Ollie Matson was the payoff and Conrad's foot made it 14-6.

When Wade led an 82 yard thrust in 12 plays, passing the final 17 to Clarke, who earlier in the march had replaced the injured Del Shofner, Cothren added the first of his two conversions.

In the fourth quarter, Dick Daugherty recovered Gern Nagler's fumble on the Card 32 and the Rams moved in for the decisive TD.

Wade's 15-yard aerial to Jon Arnett set up his 7-yard scoring pitch to Clarke. It was Wade's 15th TD pass of the season. He completed 16 passes to total 155 strikes for the season and match a club record held by Norm Van Brocklin.

McHan hit on 28 out of 51 passes for 245 yards.
Los Angeles 3 3 7 7—20
Chicago Cardinals 0 7 7 0—14
Los Angeles: TD, Clarke 2, (17 pass from Wade; 7 pass from Wade), PAT, Cothren, 2. FG, Cothren 2, (14, 12).

Steelers Top Bears For 5th Straight Win

Tracy, Layne, Orr Spark Pittsburgh To 24-10 Triumph

By GIB STALEY

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Bobby Layne's 48-yard touchdown pass to end Jimmy Orr in the final period carried the Pittsburgh Steelers to a 24-10 victory over the Chicago Bears Sunday.

Orr also caught a 59-yard pass in the final quarter which set up the Steelers' insurance TD as they beat the Bears for the first time in National Football League play. It was the fifth triumph in a

Colts' Late Rally Sinks 49ers, 35-27

Overcome Deficit Of 20 Points With Four Touchdowns

By GEORGE BOWEN
BALTIMORE (AP)—The Baltimore Colts, trailing by 20 points at the half, reared back for four touchdowns in the last two quarters for a 35-27 victory over the San Francisco 49ers and the Western Conference championship of the National Football League Sunday.

The Colts clinched their first conference title with two more games to play in Los Angeles and San Francisco. Their victory Sunday coupled with the 24-10 loss by the Chicago Bears to the Pittsburgh Steelers gave Baltimore a three-game lead.

Trail 27-7 At Half

The Colts, in the NFL only six seasons, trailed 27-7 at halftime and looked shoddy in the bargain. It was a different Baltimore story in the second half.

They smothered the 49er offense and steamed up their own for a blazing three touchdowns in the last quarter. Memorial Stadium really rocked when Lenny Moore weaved his way 73 yards for a touchdown that tied the score 27-27.

Game Statistics
BALTIMORE (AP)—Statistics of the San Francisco 49ers-Baltimore Colts game:

Passing yardage....158	196

Yards penalized.....50	46

27. Steve Myhra's fourth place kick conversion gave the Colts the edge for the first time.

Quarterback John Unitas tossed a 7-yard pass to end Ray Berry for the last touchdown. It was the 23rd straight game in which Unitas threw at least one touchdown pass. It tied him with Cecil Isbell for the all-time record in that department of the NFL.

A feeling that the Baltimore huddle was about to burst went through the stadium when the 49ers swept 80 yards for a touchdown after the opening kickoff and piled on three more in the second period.

But the positions were exactly reversed in the second half. The Colts charged 62 yards to score after the kickoff. Unitas completed four passes for 51 yards in the drive and Alan Ameche plunged less than a yard for the touchdown.

Ameche Scores Twice
A 50-yard pass from Unitas to end Jim Mutscheller got the Colts moving again at the end of the third quarter and Ameche plunged for his second touchdown on the second play of the fourth period.

A couple of minutes later, Moore broke loose for his dazzling run that took him down the side lines, back to the center of the field and then straight ahead to avoid a series of tacklers.

Unitas' passing and Joe Perry's running moved the 49ers to their first touchdown, the quarterback sneaking the last yard.

Unitas evened it up by running three yards to score at the end of a 65-yard Baltimore drive as the first quarter closed.

The San Francisco spurge in the second period started after Bert Rechichar had missed a 38 yard field goal for the Colts with the score tied 7-7. The 49ers moved 80 yards quickly for a touchdown to go in front. Tittle completed four passes that accounted for 61 yards and he ran the last three.

Blocks Point Try

Orrell Brase of the Colts blocked Gordy Soltau's attempted conversion and the last point loomed large in the last quarter.

San Francisco had to travel only 27 yards for their next score. Bob Tonniff jarred the ball loose from Unitas and it rolled back 20 yards to the Baltimore goal before the Colts recovered it. Ray Brown punted out only 27 yards. A Tittle to Clyde Conner pass was good for 20 yards and Hugh McElhenry finally scored from a yard out.

Unitas, passing from his own five, gave the 49ers their third touchdown in the period. The ball deflected, Matt Hazeltine gathered it in on the 13 and the line-backer lugged it over the goal.

San Francisco 7 20 0-27
Baltimore 7 0 7 21-35

San Francisco: TD, Tittle 2 (1 plunge, 3 run), McElhenry (1 plunge), Hazeltine (13 intercepted pass, PAT), Salltau 3.

Baltimore: TD, Unitas (4 run), Ameche 2 (1 plunge, 1 plunge), Moore (7 run), Berry (7 pass from Unitas), PAT, Myhra 5.

Air Force Academy, Clemson Are Tapped For Bowl Berths

Ole Miss, Florida, Hardin-Simmons Also Are Selected

By ED CORRIGAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

All the major (and most minor) bowls have been settled: stock and barrel, "the" game — Army-Navy—is over, and for almost everyone, the 1958 college football season is history.

Almost everyone, but not quite. Next Saturday, four diehards go at it and then the regular season will be resumed, but definitely. Boston College plays Holy Cross and Oregon engages Miami in regionally televised games.

None of the four are near the top of the heap, so neither game will have any significance nationally.

Army Licks Navy

When Army licked Navy, 22-6, in Philadelphia Saturday to complete its first season since 1949 without a loss, and the Air Force Academy, Clemson, Mississippi, Florida and Hardin-Simmons were tapped for bowl berths, the campaign, for all intents and purposes, ended.

As for the bowls, the Air Force Academy decided to try its luck in the Cotton Bowl after licking tough Colorado of the Big Eight, 20-14. Cotton Bowl officials had been hoping for two weeks they could land the AFA. The other team will be Texas Christian, Southwest Conference champion.

Clemson, which doesn't exactly make a habit of appearing in big bowl games, earned a shot at Louisiana State in the Sugar Bowl by dropping Furman, 36-19. The Tigers, Atlantic Coast Conference champions, have made only three bowl appearances since 1940. They won all three, by the way.

Choose Gator Teams

The Gator Bowl played it very close to the vest and waited until the last possible moment to pick its two teams, Mississippi and Florida.

Ole Miss shut out Mississippi State, 21-0, and Florida just did get past Miami, Fla., 12-9. It was a real chiller for Florida, because Coach Bob Woodruff had been told that the bid was dependent on a victory over Miami.

Hardin-Simmons, which won the Border Conference championship Friday, turning back New Mexico A&M, 26-20, snapped up an offer to meet Skyline Champion Wyoming in the Sun Bowl. This, two, was expected once Hardin-Simmons got past the Aggies.

The Bowl Picture

So here is how the major bowl picture shapes up: Rose Bowl at Pasadena, Calif. — Iowa (7-1-1) vs California (7-3). Sugar Bowl at New Orleans — Louisiana State (10-0) vs Clemson (8-2).

Orange Bowl at Miami — Oklahoma (5-1) vs Syracuse (8-1).

Cotton Bowl at Dallas — Texas Christian (8-2) vs Air Force Academy (9-0-1).

Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, Fla. — Florida (6-3-1) vs Mississippi (8-2).

Sun Bowl at El Paso, Tex. — Wyoming (7-3) vs Hardin-Simmons (6-4).

Tangerine Bowl (Orlando, Fla.) — Officials are up in the air over issuing invitations. The University of Buffalo turned down a spot because the two Negroes on its squad would not have been permitted to play.

Louisiana State finished operations as the only undefeated-untied major team in the land. Right behind them was Army, Air Force Academy.

Terp Floormen Open Campaign With Wolfpack

College Park Site For Wednesday Tilt

By The Associated Press
The first of December also brings the start of another basketball season for colleges in Maryland.

Maryland State leads off by playing at Hunter College in New York Monday night.

The University of Maryland digs right into its tough Atlantic Coast Conference by opening Wednesday night with North Carolina State.

Maryland was the ACC tournament champion last season and North Carolina State is favored to take the title this campaign.

Maryland's second game this week is Saturday at Northwestern. All the state colleges will play at least once this week.

This week's schedule:
Monday - Maryland State at Hunter.

Tuesday-Kentucky State at Morgan, Loyola at Iona, Baltimore at Shippensburg, Steubenville at Mt. St. Mary's.

Wednesday-North Carolina State at Maryland, Western Maryland vs. Alumni, Gallaudet at Towson, Loyola at Seton Hall, Frostburg at Potomac State, Mt. St. Mary's at Elizabethtown.

Friday - Catholic at Western Maryland, Baltimore at Long Island.

Saturday-Penn. at Navy, Maryland at Northwestern, Morgan State at Virginia Union, Johns Hopkins at Towson, West Virginia Tech at Loyola, Baltimore at St. Peter's, Washington at American, Maryland State at Delaware State, Georgetown at Mt. St. Mary's.

NEW YORK (UPI)—Virgil Akins' first defense of the welterweight title will feature this week's boxing.

Akins of St. Louis risks his 147-pound crown against Don Jordan of Los Angeles at the Los Angeles Olympic Auditorium Friday night in a TV-radio (NBC) 13-rounder. There'll be a TV blackout in the Los Angeles area.

American Association To Expand To Ten Teams

Three Texas Loop Clubs Are Sought

$50,000 Offered For Fort Worth, Dallas, Houston

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Assn. Sunday voted to expand into a 10-team league and made a concrete offer to the Texas League for three of its cities — Houston, Dallas and Fort Worth.

The announcement was made by Edward Doherty, president of the American Assn. following a meeting of committees representing the two circuits involved.

"I cannot at this time divulge the terms we offered to the Texas League," Doherty said. "But there is some money involved."

It was believed the American Assn. offered $50,000 for the three clubs. At its meeting in Memphis, Tenn., earlier this month, the Texas League had demanded $120,000 — $40,000 per club.

It was not immediately learned whether there were any other stipulations.

Minors Meet Today

Members of the two leagues, for the first time since the realignment plan was originally proposed at the Memphis meeting, expressed optimism that something could be worked out, possibly before the end of the three-day minor league convention which opens officially Monday.

A total of 13 amendments were listed on the agenda of the minor league convention, which will be followed immediately by the annual major league meetings Thursday and Friday.

Chief interest concerns the unrestricted draft of first year players, a plan designed to curb the free-wheeling bonus spending which has reached the staggering sum of six million dollars since the bonus rule was discarded last December.

Would Offer $50,000

The Texas League and American Assn. spent a major portion of Sunday considering a proposal submitted by Bill DeWitt, administrator of the major leagues' $500,000 fund. The plan, if accepted, would result in the transfer of Houston, Dallas and Fort Worth to the American Assn.

The triple A circuit recently was reduced to seven clubs when the Milwaukee Braves decided to bow out of Wichita, Kan.

Under DeWitt's proposal, the Texas League would be compensated to the tune of $50,000 for releasing the three franchises to the AA. Each of the remaining five clubs, as well as the three replacements, would be guaranteed Class A Major league working agreements.

Possible Replacements

Possible replacements include Amarillo, Tex., and Albuquerque, N.M., of the Class A Western League, and Wichita. The Western League, hard hit by the loss of big league tie-ups, was expected to officially dissolve at the meetings.

Rosenbluth Leads Warriors To Win

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Lenmy Rosenbluth came off the bench in the last two minutes to lead the Philadelphia Warriors to a 103-100 victory over the New York Knicks Sunday afternoon at Convention Hall in a National Basketball Association televised game.

Rosenbluth's long jump shot with 37 seconds left gave the Warriors a 101-100 edge and the former North Carolina star added two fouls with three seconds remaining.

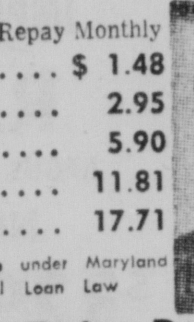

New York had to play the last half without star forward Wally Naulls who was tossed out of the game by referee Marty Cribbins in the second quarter.

Sauldsberry was high man with the Warriors with 25 while Paul Arizin had 19. New York's Gierulink took game honors with 28 tallies and Sears had 27.

Big Stakes Set

NEW YORK (AP)—Four $100,000-plus thoroughbred dates have been set at two tracks during the winter season. The first is the Santa Anita Maturity scheduled for Jan. 31. The race is for 4-year-olds who will travel one mile and a quarter.

On Feb. 21 Hialeah will put up a huge piece of cash for its Widener Handicap for 3-year-olds and upward. It's at one-mile and a quarter. Both the Santa Anita Handicap and Flamingo Stakes at Hialeah are set for Feb. 28.

The Santa Anita test for 3-year-olds and upward at one mile and a quarter while the Flamingo at one mile and an eighth usually brings out 3-year-olds who are Kentucky Derby prospects.

American Association of Colleges To Expand To Ten Teams

Three Texas Loop Clubs Are Sought

$50,000 Offered For Fort Worth, Dallas, Houston

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Assn. Sunday voted to expand into a 10-team league and made a concrete offer to the Texas League for three of its cities — Houston, Dallas and Fort Worth.

The announcement was made by Edward Doherty, president of the American Assn. following a meeting of committees representing the two circuits involved.

"I cannot at this time divulge the terms we offered to the Texas League," Doherty said. "But there is some money involved."

It was believed the American Assn. offered $50,000 for the three clubs. At its meeting in Memphis, Tenn., earlier this month, the Texas League had demanded $120,000 — $40,000 per club.

It was not immediately learned whether there were any other stipulations.

Minors Meet Today

Members of the two leagues, for the first time since the realignment plan was originally proposed at the Memphis meeting, expressed optimism that something could be worked out, possibly before the end of the three-day minor league convention which opens officially Monday.

A total of 13 amendments were listed on the agenda of the minor league convention, which will be followed immediately by the annual major league meetings Thursday and Friday.

Chief interest concerns the unrestricted draft of first year players, a plan designed to curb the free-wheeling bonus spending, which has reached the staggering sum of six million dollars since the bonus rule was discarded last December.

Would Offer $50,000

The Texas League and American Assn. spent a major portion of Sunday considering a proposal submitted by Bill DeWitt, administrator of the major leagues' $500,000 fund. The plan, if accepted, would result in the transfer of Houston, Dallas and Fort Worth to the American Assn.

The triple A circuit recently was reduced to seven clubs when the Milwaukee Braves decided to bow out of Wichita, Kan.

Under DeWitt's proposal, the Texas League would be compensated to the tune of $50,000 for releasing the three franchises to the AA. Each of the remaining five clubs, as well as the three replacements, would be guaranteed Class A Major league working agreements.

Possible Replacements

Possible replacements include Amarillo, Tex., and Albuquerque, N.M., of the Class A Western League, and Wichita, The Western League, hard hit by the loss of big league tie-ups, was expected to officially dissolve at the meetings.

Rosenbluth Leads Warriors To Win

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Lenzy Rosenbluth came off the bench in the last two minutes to lead the Philadelphia Warriors to a 103-100 victory over the New York Knicks Sunday afternoon at Convention Hall in a National Basketball Association televised game.

Rosenbluth's long jump shot with 37 seconds left gave the Warriors a 101-100 edge and the former North Carolina star added two fouls with three seconds remaining.

New York had to play the last half without star forward Willie Naulls who was tossed out of the game by referee Marty Cribbins in the second quarter.

Sauldsberry was high man with the Warriors with 25 while Paul Arizin had 19. New York's Guerin took game honors with 28 tallies and Sears had 27.

The tapir is the biggest game animal in South America and is much sought after by native hunters.

3 W. Va. Demos Seek Post As House Speaker

Pauley, Miles Seen As Top Contenders

By BILL BARRETT
United Press International

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The contest for speakership of the House of Delegates remains as the primary item on the agenda of the Democratic party caucus here Monday.

It appeared certain that at least three and possibly four candidates will be proposed for the House post when the majority party members convene behind closed doors.

There was no opposition for Senate President Ralph J. Bean, of Moorefield, seeking an unprecedented fourth term as the upper chamber's presiding officer.

Pauley Has Edge.

Incumbent Speaker Harry R. Pauley of Iaeger appeared to have a slight edge in the House race. Next in line was former majority leader T. E. Myles of Fayetteville, whom Pauley beat for the speakership post last June.

Pauley, a McDowell County real estate man, was elected six months ago to fill the unexpired term of the late W. E. Flannery of Man. The 53rd Legislature officially expired Sunday.

The new Legislature takes over Monday, and Democrats are wasting no time getting organized for the 60-day regular session opening Jan. 14.

Both chambers will name administrative officials — clerks, doorkeepers, sergeants at arms, etc.—during the caucus Monday.

Besides Pauley and Myles nominations for the speakership are expected to include one of a four-delegate coalition and Logan County Delegate Daniel D. Dahill.

However, it was uncertain late Sunday whether Dahill would stick in the race.

Four Possibilities

But it appeared definite that unless something developed there would be only one candidate from the four coalition possibilities. It would be either Dels. W. T. Brotherton Jr. of Charleston, Julius Singleton of Morgantown, H. Laban White of Clarksburg or J.E. (Ned) Watson of Fairmont.

There was no way to tell which of the four was likely to get the nod.

A spokesman for the group revealed Saturday that combined they had the support of more than 40 delegates, or enough to control the election. There were two problems to be solved: to keep the support together if one candidate were named, and to select one of their number to receive the support in the election.

Several meetings of the four have already been held and more are likely before the caucus gets under way.

Democratic state chairman H. Lett C. Smith will call the caucus sessions to order and deliver a short address to the lawmakers. Smith set the date for the caucus session in order to allow the leadership, once selected, to begin work on a Democratic program for presentation to the Legislature next January.

Chief Stresses Snow Removal Ordinances

FROSTBURG—Despite the near zero weather and icy streets, city police and the street department kept traffic moving with a minimum of trouble.

Several cars skidded on the steeper sections of Main Street causing minor damage but accidents were held at a minimum after street department workers asked the streets.

Chief of Police Lloyd Truly has asked that residents and motorists observe the two city ordinances which call for (1) all side walks cleaned within 24 hours after a snow storm and (2) no parking after midnight or before 7 a.m. on Main Street, Broadway or Water Streets after a snow storm in order to permit snow plows to open the roads. Chief Truly pointed out that if these two ordinances would be observed both foot and motor traffic would be able to move faster and better.

Chief Stresses Snow Removal Ordinances

FROSTBURG—Despite the near zero weather and icy streets, city police and the street department kept traffic moving with a minimum of trouble.

Several cars skidded on the steeper sections of Main Street causing minor damage but accidents were held at a minimum after street department workers ashed the streets.

Chief of Police Lloyd Truly has asked that residents and motorists observe the two city ordinances which call for (1) all side walks cleaned within 24 hours after a snow storm and (2) no parking after midnight or before 7 a.m. on Main Street, Broadway or Water Streets after a snow storm in order to permit snow plows to open the roads.

Chief Truly pointed out that if these two ordinances would be observed both foot and motor traffic would be able to move faster and better.

Take the stress and strain out of buying Christmas presents!

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

24 Days To Christmas

Only 24 days to Christmas — and not all of them shopping days! About this time many of us find our gift lists growing. But those who enjoy the season to the utmost reverse the situation. You are just the girl to do it, too. All it takes is the following shopping wisdom.

1. Instead of waiting for inspiration, scan your newspaper, catalogues and magazines for gift suggestions. When one seems to go well with a name on your list, clip it out. But double-check before you pin it with finality beside the intended recipient's name.

Check once to make certain it lives with his or her tastes and desires and will be enjoyed. Check again to be sure you're not fooling yourself and choosing something you are, just dying to possess.

2. After selecting all the gifts you can from ads, make a classified list of their sources. Itemize each gift you plan to order from any store.

3. Then, sit down at once and write a firm, clear order to all the stores on your list. Presto! The filled orders roll in — without your even having to leave the house!

4. Make a second list of the unusual, selective ideas you have for gifts. Classify them according to store departments, such as tie, toy, costume jewelry, book, etc. When you're ready to visit your favorite shops, you'll save many a step and much confusion by having a written itinerary of your ports of call. You'll be amazed to find how many you can cover in just one shopping trip!

When you approach your shopping problems in this business-like fashion, you eliminate most of the fatigue and frustration, and may even find them a source of inspiration and enjoyment. That's the secret gift of charm. The gifts that most reflect your thoughtfulness are usually the same ones that give you pleasure in selecting.

BRIDGE QUIZ ANSWERS

Q. 1—As South you hold:

♠AQ10 43 ♥Q6 ♠10 9 3 ♣7 2

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1 ♠ Pass 2 ♦ Pass

What do you bid now?

A—Two spades. This is a minimum opening and the simple rebid in spades is preferred to a diamond raise which would denote a stronger holding — at least 16 points in support.

Q. 2—As South you hold:

♠7 5 ♥K 9 6 4 3 ♠KQ 3 ♣8 7 2

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

1 NT. Pass 2 ♣ Pass

2 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A—Two no trump. You must not bid three hearts for that would be forcing to game. This hand contained the elements of a two no trump rate initially, but with a five card major and a worthless doubleton you chose to explore suit possibilities by instituting the two club inquiry. Since partner has bid spades you are forced to return to no trump. He can still show hearts in the remote contingency that he has them or proceed to three no trump if his opening was not a minimum.

Q. 3—As South you hold:

♥KQJ 10 8 6 5 ♥9 10 7 ♠A 4 3

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

5 ♦ Double ?

What do you bid?

A—Pass. You have no reason to disturb partner's bid. It will be time enough to think of bidding spades if West takes the double out to five hearts. In the meantime your hand should make a perfectly suitable dummy.

♠AQJ 6 4 ♥A 7 5 4 ♠J 8 3 2

The bidding has proceeded:

East South West North

1 ♠ Double 1 NT. Double

Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A—Two spades. Since your double was based somewhat on distribution rather than high card strength, your hand may prove a disappointment offensively. There is the added factor that if West now rescues to two clubs and your partner doubles that bid, you will be at a loss as to whether you should stand for it.

Q. 5—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠7 4 2 ♥A 10 ♦8 7 6 3 ♠Q 10 9 4

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

Pass 1 ♥ Double 2 ♣ Pass

What do you bid now?

A—Four diamonds. Partner has made a vulnerable overcall and then bid voluntarily at the three level which marks him with a very good hand. Your hand, though not strong, is definitely more than he could have counted on and, consequently, is worth a try for game. With but a single heart stopper we would not recommend a bid of three no trump. A possibility, however, might be three hearts which could enable partner to bid no trump with some secondary heart stopper.

Q. 6—As South you hold:

♠KQ 3 ♥J 5 ♠KJ 10 8 6 ♠K 9 3

The bidding has proceeded:

West North East South

1 NT. Pass Pass ?

What do you bid?

A—Double. This is a trifle light for a double, but East has confessed to a weak hand which could prove to be a complete Yarborough. If partner has most of the missing points, you will severely damage the one no trump contract. If he has to take the double out, the consequences shouldn't be too dire.

Q. 7—As South you hold:

♠A ♥Q 4 3 ♠A 9 8 6 4 3 ♠J 9 5

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

Pass Pass 1 ♥ Pass

What do you bid now?

A—Three diamonds. This is somewhat of an underbid but there is no other convenient call available. A leap to five diamonds may get you one too high if partner has a shaded third seat opening. If he rebids three no trump, you will be faced with a further problem, but considerations of safety would dictate a return to four diamonds.

Q. 8—As South you hold:

♠K 9 8 6 ♥J 10 5 ♦6 5 2 ♠A 5 4

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

1 ♠ 2 ♦ 2 ♠ Pass

What do you bid now?

A—Pass. Partner's three spade bid is an inquiry as to whether you have any surplus values. Actually you have just about made the grade for a free raise. Had your two spade bid come in the absence of the overcall, then you would be justified in carrying on.

What do you bid?

A. Double. This is a trifle light for a double, but East has confessed to a weak hand which could prove to be a complete Yarborough. If partner has most of the missing points, you will severely damage the one no trump contract. If he has to take the double out, the consequences shouldn't be too dire.

Q. 7—As South you hold:

♠A ♥Q 4 3 ♦A 9 8 6 4 3 ♠J 0 5

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

Pass Pass 1 ♥ Pass

What do you bid?

A. Three diamonds. This is somewhat of an underbid but there is no other convenient call available. A leap to five diamonds may get you one too high if partner has a shaded third seat opening. If he rebids three no trump, you will be faced with a further problem, but considerations of safety would dictate a return to four diamonds.

Q. 8—As South you hold:

♠K 9 8 6 ♥J 10 5 ♠6 5 2 ♠A 5 4

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

1 ♠ 2 ♦ 2 ♠ Pass

3 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A. Pass. Partner's three spade bid is an inquiry as to whether you have any surplus values. Actually you have just about made the grade for a free raise. Had your two spade bid come in the absence of the overall, then you would be justified in carrying on.

Jamaicans Taper Off Migration

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — The migration of Jamaicans to Britain is tapering off.

Travel agents say bookings for Britain are the lowest since the big exodus began six years ago. The migration of Jamaicans has aroused complaints, and some race riots in Britain.

Friday, the liner Begonia sailed for Southampton with only 52 immigrants, the lowest number on any migrant ship in six years.

The aardvark or cape anteater offered to buy 75,000 shares of the only anteater that has Hevi-Duty Electric Co. common teeth. Feeding nocturnally, the stock for $22 a share. Basic anteater's diet is white ants or ready is the largest single stockholder in Hevi-Duty.

Gets "Degree"
MELBOURNE, Australia (UPI) — British showgirl Sabrina, born Norma Sykes, received the "degree of doctor of physical development" from appreciative Melbourne University students Saturday.

RESPOND TO GRITS
DECATUR, Ga. (UPI)—What's in a word? Fred Copeland, proud owner of three Alaskan Malamutes, was dismayed that the sled-toting dogs wouldn't respond to "mush, mush" when they were being urged to pull the family wagon. Noticing the dogs were adapting themselves well to life in the South, Copeland found the magic word. Now the dogs race away to the cry: "grits! grits!"

Have New Finish
PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—Tohm & Hass Co. announced development of a new family of acrylic resins which can be used in auto-owners of three Alaskan Malamutes, was dismayed that the sled-toting dogs wouldn't respond to "mush, mush" when they were being urged to pull the family wagon. Noticing the dogs were adapting themselves well to life in the South, Copeland found the magic word. Now the dogs race away to the cry: "grits! grits!"

Wins Appointment
LONDON (UPI) — John Profumo, husband of actress Valerie Hobson, Friday was appointed under-secretary of the foreign office. He succeeds Ian Harvey who resigned after being charged with committing a homosexual act with a private in the Coldstream Guards.

Teen-agers Earn
BRIGHTON, England (UPI)—Britain's 5,000,000 teen-agers earn about $4,144,000 a year, or about 8 1/2 per cent of all personal incomes in Britain, it was reported Friday. Market researcher Mark Abrams said the teen-agers had $2,520,000,000 for spending money every year.

DECATUR, Ga. (UPI)—What's in a word? Noticing the dogs were adapting themselves well to life in the South, Copeland found the cones, oak leaves and other magic word. Now the dogs race ural items. Then shellac them away to the cry: "grits! grits!" and store for holiday decorating.

Mercury Dips Below Zero In Garrett County

City Has Third Coldest Nov. Day

The mercury dipped to two below zero in Garrett County, and Allegany County had the coldest day of this fall yesterday as the tri-state area remained in the grip of the year's worst cold spell.

R. E. Weber, weather observer at Oakland, reported the mercury two degrees during the height of a cold windy siege yesterday morning.

High for the day in the Garrett locale was 25 degrees, although the bright sunshine and wind helped clear away some of the ice which had made highway travel treacherous.

The below zero reading is the lowest recording of temperatures this fall in Garrett, far surpassing the previous low of 13 degrees above noted last week.

Mr. Weber noted the mercury dropped sharply last night after the sun went down, reaching four above at 8 p.m. He said the temperature was expected to dip well below zero during the night.

New Snow Reported

Maryland State Police at LaVale reported roads were icy in spots with some drifts west of Frostburg, Route 40 was almost impassable early yesterday morning but cleared during the day.

Police also reported approximately one-half inch of new snow in the Grantsville and Keyser Ridge area early yesterday.

At Constitution Park in Cumberland, R. R. Golden, weather observer, said the city had also experienced the coldest day this fall, the thermometer dropping to a low of 10 degrees early yesterday.

High for the 24-hour period was 23 degrees, and gusts of wind to 50 miles per hour were recorded at the height of the wind storm late Saturday night and early yesterday morning.

Yesterday was cold and sunny, although the 10 degrees low is the third coldest day recorded in November. The lowest temperature for the month was five above zero on November 29, 1930. Another low of eight degrees was recorded on November 17, 1914. Several other readings of 10 degrees also are on record, Mr. Golden said.

Turnpike Tied Up

Pennsylvania State Police reported traffic tieups on the turnpike west of Bedford. Snowdrifts of nearly a foot deep on the highway backed traffic up as much as 10 miles between Laurel Hill and Allegheny tunnels, they said. Single lane traffic was in force through the tunnels.

The Weather Bureau predicted overnight lows of from zero to 10 degrees in Western Maryland, from 4 to 15 degrees in north central sections and from 12 to 20 in Southern Maryland and on the Eastern Shore.

Monday, the forecasters said, should be warmer—but just slightly—with highs around 40 expected.

Cold In West Virginia

West Virginians shivered in sub-freezing temperatures early Sunday as the mercury slid to between zero in the Wheeling area and 12 degrees in the Eastern Panhandle.

State Road Commission crews had cleared most major highways of snow which measured as much as 12 inches in Brooke County Saturday. Skies were sunny and clear Sunday with no additional snow reported. A possibility of more snow was forecast for a section of the Mountain State Monday.

Among representative lows recorded Sunday morning were one degree in Parkersburg, Elkins and Flat Top, Mercer County, 3 in Morgantown, 6 in Huntington, 7 in Charleston and 12 in Martinsburg. None was reported a record low.

Wind And Auto Combine To Ruin Santa Decoration

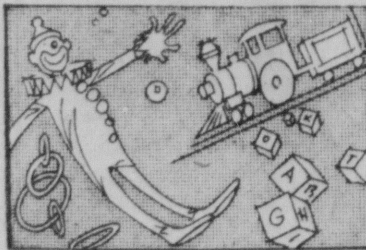

Saturday night's strong wind gusts and the top of a passing automobile combined to break one of the large glass Santa Claus decorations on North Centre Street.

The strong wind buffeted the ornament about until the ropes holding it above the Frederick Street intersection slipped.

The Santa Claus slipped lower and lower during the night until a passing car's rooftop struck it and knocked it to the ground, breaking the glass in several places.

21 SHOPPING DAYS TO CHRISTMAS

No Easy Chair For Him

Eighty-two-year-old Edward P. Cosgrove, seen at his desk in his home at 607 Sylvan Avenue, has been employed by the Old Export Brewing Company for 49 years and is thought to be the oldest brewery worker in the United States. His formula for staying young and active — "Stay away from that easy chair." There is such a chair in the room but Mr. Cosgrove shuns it.

'Oldest' Brewer Stays Young In His Own Way

"If you want to stay young as you grow old—keep away from that easy chair."

That's the advice of 82-year-old Edward P. Cosgrove, 607 Sylvan Avenue, who has been going to his job at the Old Export brewery for 49 of the 69 years the brewery has been in existence, and is thought to be the oldest active brewery worker in the United States.

Since anything that succeeds is naturally successful, the elderly gentleman's physical ability and appearance, plus his mental agility, indicate that his advice is sound.

He walks with a quick, sprightly step; there's a keen light in his steady brown eyes; his voice is strong and crisp with decisiveness; he still has most of his hair and there's as much black as gray in it; his slight build — "never varied more than a few pounds in my life" — is set off by the large, strong hands of a vigorous man.

He discusses the intricacies of brewing chemistry with the ease of a young science major out of college, retaining the knowledge he gained from a correspondence course 30 years ago.

Breweries Of Bygone Years

Relating that he went from master mechanic at the B&O rolling mill to chief engineer at the brewery in 1909 at the request of the brewery management, he says: "There were a lot of breweries in Cumberland in the old days."

Mentioning such names as Himmler, Ritter, Beck and Thuss, he points out that the old Beck brewery building still stands on Valley Street and Ritter's on Paca Street, while the brick cellars of the Himmler brewery were unearthed during the current widening of Knox Street.

"You know," he grins, "it's a wonder I ever got along with all the Dutchmen there are in this business. I'm an Irishman through and through."

Plant manager at Old Export from 1929 till 1936, Mr. Cosgrove says he told the brewery management in the latter year that they'd better get a younger man. "No use kidding yourself," he adds. "When you start to get some age on you, you can't move around like a younger man can. And another thing, if you leave an old fellow on a job too long, everybody gets used to him and they don't want to work with a younger man."

Active Unionist

While much of his life has been taken up by management functions, Mr. Cosgrove has been an avid union leader, serving as financial secretary and treasurer of the International Association of Machinists; president of a local of the Stationary Engineers; president of Brewery Workers Union of America, Local 265; and delegate to the old Allegany Trades Council.

He laughs about the to-do that is made about the modern "coffee break." Brewers, he says, are guaranteed five beer breaks a day in their contract with management, and while he personally is now content with only an occasional glass of beer, he drank it every day for over 40 years.

He is the father of ten children — five girls and five boys. A deeply religious man himself, one of his daughters is a nun. Sitting at an ancient roll-top desk in his cozy dining room, with his leg cocked spryly over the arm of his chair, the 82-year-old youngster allows that he's "a sort of senior advisor" at the brewery now.

How To Do Nothing?

"About a year ago," he chuckles, "the president of the brewery told me it was all right to come to work every day, but that I should do nothing. I told him I had never found any tools to do nothing with."

So he makes himself useful

Beall Believes He'd Have Won Over Any Demo

Says Voters Were Not Mad At Him

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. J. Glenn Beall thinks he could have beaten any Democratic candidate in the general election.

He attributed his re-election to a combination of his "personal contacts" and widespread resentment against his controversial opponent, Baltimore Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro.

Some independent Democrats were pledged to him even before the results of the May primary, the Western Maryland Republican said here in a weekend interview.

He defeated D'Alesandro by 14,744 votes in the Nov. 4 balloting, winning a second six-year term.

Many political observers have said it was largely resentment in the counties to the Baltimore mayor, which helped Beall to victory. D'Alesandro's top running mate, J. Millard Tawes, defeated his GOP opponent for governor, Rep. James Devereux, by more than 200,000 votes in a Democratic landslide in Maryland. All seven congressional seats also went to the Democrats, as well as the comptroller's and attorney general's offices. Beall was the only oasis in a desert of Republican setbacks.

Beall said that if one of D'Alesandro's three chief primary opponents — George P. Mahoney, James Bruce or Clarence D. Long — had been nominated, "perhaps not the same people (in the Democratic party) would have supported us."

But, he added, many independent Democrats had pledged to support him regardless of which Democratic candidate was nominated. "Personally, I think we would have won anyhow," Beall said. "People generally were not mad at me."

Car's Interior Gutted By Fire

The interior of a car owned by James Kesner, formerly of Cresaptown, who now is employed in Washington, was gutted by fire yesterday at Cresaptown.

Cresaptown Volunteer Fire Company responded to the alarm about 1:50 a.m. with 10 men, and battled the blaze for 45 minutes.

Firemen said the fire apparently started from a short circuit in the car's wiring. The interior of the car was destroyed. Firemen were hampered somewhat by the extreme cold, although they reported none of their water lines frozen.

Mr. Gordon submitted a report to the board last Friday showing that open drainage ditches had been installed on the farms of E. L. Fagan, Union Grove Road, and Branson Sisler, Oldtown.

Stream channel work was done on Mr. Sisler's farm as well as the farm of Cyril Luker at Oldtown.

E. Stuart Delbrook of Mt. Savage, a Soil Conservation Service employee in this county, will spend the months of December, January and February working on a survey of the Nanticoke watershed in the Georgetown, Del. area. He is one of three Marylanders going to Delaware for the project.

Two Cars Stolen; Another Attempt Is Thwarted

City police said a Baltimore and Ohio watchman last night foiled an attempt to steal his automobile parked near the Bedford Street crossing.

The watchman saw his car moving and ran across to the parking area where he found a youth about 14 or 15 behind the wheel of the vehicle. When he attempted to take the boy to police the lad broke away and fled. He was described as about 5 feet, 10 inches tall, wearing a blue sweater with red dots, and blue trousers.

Two other automobiles were reported stolen last night. James Weakley, 105 North Johnson Street, said his 1953 Plymouth sedan was taken from in front of his house. The license number is Maryland GB 41-84.

Another car reported stolen about 7 p.m. by W. Carl White of 18 North Allegany Street was recovered about 20 minutes later by the owner about a block from his home.

W. Va. Woman, Run Over By Own Car, Dies

Injuries Are Fatal To Mrs. Pentoney

A 51-year-old Berkeley Springs, W. Va. area woman, accidentally run over by her own car Friday, died Saturday in Morgan County War Memorial Hospital, Berkeley Springs.

Mrs. Elizabeth Pentoney, wife of John Pentoney, RFD 3, Berkeley Springs, was admitted to the hospital in serious condition and died the next day.

Dr. Samuel I. Nichols, coroner for Morgan County, ruled Mrs. Pentoney died of internal injuries as a result of the accident.

The accident occurred as Mrs. Pentoney apparently tried to connect her stalled car to a tractor.

Mrs. Pentoney stooped down between the two vehicles to make the connection, and the brakes on the car apparently failed, causing it to run over her.

She was born November 14, 1907 in Morgan County, a daughter of the late Henry B. and Ida (Weber) Ruppenthal.

Surviving, besides her husband, are a son and a daughter, Paul V. and Freida Pentoney, both at home; a sister, Mrs. Lemona Goller, Keyser, W. Also reported stolen at the same locale was a black purse containing a blue wallet, cards, personal papers and $2. The purse belonged to Miss Brenda N. Waite, 716 Louisiana Avenue. The purse later was found at an Old-Town Road cafe, but the money was missing.

Miss Tana Sensabaugh, Route 1, city, reported a green billfold containing a wallet, $7, and personal papers was taken from her handbag at a dance at Emmanuel Episcopal Church parish house.

Mineral County Schools Closed All Day Today

Because today is the first day of the deer season in neighboring Mineral County, all public schools there will remain closed all day in a one-day prolongation of the Thanksgiving holiday.

However, all schools in the adjacent West Virginia county will be open all day tomorrow. Because of excessive absenteeism among the older high school boys in recent years on the first day of the deer season, school officials have decided it is better to keep the schools closed.

Mercury Dips Below Zero In Garrett County

City Has Third Coldest Nov. Day

The mercury dipped to two below zero in Garrett County, and Allegany County had the coldest day of this fall yesterday as the tri-state area remained in the grip of the year's worst cold spell.

R. E. Weber, weather observer at Oakland, reported the minus-two degrees during the height of a cold windy siege yesterday morning.

High for the day in the Garrett locale was 25 degrees, although the bright sunshine and wind helped clear away some of the ice which had made highway travel treacherous.

The below zero reading is the lowest recording of temperatures this fall in Garrett, far surpassing the previous low of 13 degrees above noted last week.

Mr. Weber noted the mercury dropped sharply last night after the sun went down, reaching four above at 8 p.m. He said the temperature was expected to dip well below zero during the night.

New Snow Reported

Maryland State Police at LaVale reported roads were icy in spots with some drifts west of Frostburg. Route 40 was almost impassable early yesterday morning but cleared during the day.

Police also reported approximately one-half inch of new snow in the Grantsville and Keyser Ridge area early yesterday.

At Constitution Park in Cumberland, R. R. Golden, weather observer, said the city had also experienced the coldest day this fall, the thermometer dropping to a low of 10 degrees early yesterday.

High for the 24-hour period was 23 degrees, and gusts of wind to 50 miles per hour were recorded at the height of the wind storm late Saturday night and early yesterday morning.

Yesterday was cold and sunny, although the 10 degrees low is the third coldest day recorded in November. The lowest temperature for the month was five above zero on November 29, 1930. Another low of eight degrees was recorded on November 17, 1914. Several other readings of 10 degrees also are on record, Mr. Golden said.

Turnpike Tied Up

Pennsylvania State Police reported traffic tieups on the turnpike west of Bedford. Snowdrifts of nearly a foot deep on the highway backed traffic up as much as 10 miles between Laurel Hill and Allegheny tunnels, they said. Single lane traffic was in force through the tunnels.

The Weather Bureau predicted overnight lows of from zero to 10 degrees in Western Maryland, from 4 to 15 degrees in central sections and from 12 to 20 in Southern Maryland and on the Eastern Shore.

Monday, the forecasters said, should be warmer—but just slightly—with highs around 40 expected.

Cold In West Virginia

West Virginians shivered in sub-freezing temperatures early Sunday as the mercury slid to between zero in the Wheeling area and 12 degrees in the Eastern Panhandle.

State Road Commission crews had cleared most major highways of snow which measured as much as 12 inches in Brooke County Saturday. Skies were sunny and clear Sunday with no additional snow reported. A possibility of more snow was forecast for a section of the Mountain State Monday.

Among representative lows recorded Sunday morning were one degree in Parkersburg, Elkins and Flai Top, Mercer County, 3 in Morgantown, 6 in Huntington, 7 in Charleston and 12 in Martinsburg. None was reported a record low.

Wind And Auto Combine To Ruin Santa Decoration

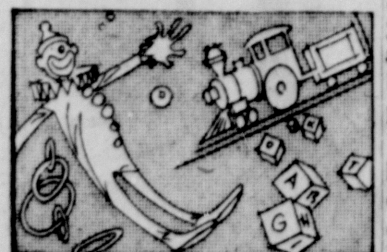

Saturday night's strong wind gusts and the top of a passing automobile combined to break one of the large glass Santa Claus decorations on North Centre Street.

The strong wind buffeted the ornament about until the ropes holding it above the Frederick Street intersection slipped.

The Santa Claus slipped lower and lower during the night until a passing car's rooftop struck it and knocked it to the ground, breaking the glass in several places.

21 SHOPPING DAYS TO CHRISTMAS

No Easy Chair For Him

Eighty-two-year-old Edward P. Cosgrove, seen at his desk in his home at 607 Sylvan Avenue, has been employed by the Old Export Brewing Company for 49 years and is thought to be the oldest brewery worker in the United States. His formula for staying young and active — "Stay away from that easy chair." There is such a chair in the room but Mr. Cosgrove shuns it.

'Oldest' Brewer Stays Young In His Own Way

"If you want to stay young as you grow old—keep away from that easy chair."

That's the advice of 82-year-old Edward P. Cosgrove, 607 Sylvan Avenue, who has been going to his job at the Old Export brewery for 49 of the 69 years the brewery has been in existence, and is thought to be the oldest active brewery worker in the United States.

Since anything that succeeds is naturally successful, the elderly gentleman's physical ability and appearance, plus his mental agility, indicate that his advice is sound.

He walks with a quick, sprightly step; there's a keen light in his steady brown eyes; his voice is strong and crisp with decisiveness; he still has most of his hair and there's as much black as gray in it; his slight build — "never varied more than a few pounds in my life" — is set off by the large, strong hands of a vigorous man.

He discusses the intricacies of brewing chemistry with the ease of a young science major out of college, retaining the knowledge he gained from a correspondence course 30 years ago.

Breweries Of Bygone Years

Relating that he went from master mechanic at the B&O rolling mill to chief engineer at the brewery in 1909 at the request of the brewery management, he says: "There were a lot of breweries in Cumberland in the old days."

Mentioning such names as Himmeler, Ritter, Beck and Thuss, he points out that the old Beck brewery building still stands on Valley Street and Ritter's on Paca Street, while the brick cellars of the Himmeler brewery were unearthed during the current widening of Knox Street.

"You know," he grins, "it's a wonder I ever got along with all the Dutchmen there are in this business. I'm an Irishman through and through."

Plant manager at Old Export from 1929 till 1936, Mr. Cosgrove says he told the brewery management in the latter year that they'd better get a younger man. "No use kidding yourself," he adds. "When you start to get some age on you, you can't move around like a younger man can. And another thing, if you leave an old fellow on a job too long, everybody gets used to him and they don't want to work with a younger man."

Active Unionist

While much of his life has been taken up by management functions, Mr. Cosgrove has been an avid union leader, serving as financial secretary and treasurer of the International Association of Machinists; president of a local of the Stationary Engineers; president of Brewery Workers Union of America, Local 265; and delegate to the old Allegany Trades Council.

He laughs about the to-do that is made about the modern "coffee break." Brewers, he says, are guaranteed five beer breaks a day in their contract with management, and while he personally is now content with only an occasional glass of beer, he drank it every day for over 40 years.

He is the father of ten children — five girls and five boys. A deeply religious man himself, one of his daughters is a nun.

Sitting at an ancient roll-top desk in his cozy dining room, with his leg cocked spryly over the arm of his chair, the 82-year-old youngster allows that he's "a sort of senior advisor" at the brewery now.

How To Do Nothing?

"About a year ago," he chuckles, "the president of the brewery told me it was all right to come to work every day, but that I should do nothing. I told him I had never found any tools to do nothing with."

So he makes himself useful

Beall Believes He'd Have Won Over Any Demo

Says Voters Were Not Mad At Him

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. J. Glenn Beall thinks he could have beaten any Democratic candidate in the general election.

He attributed his re-election to a combination of his "personal contacts" and widespread resentment against his controversial opponent, Baltimore Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro.

Some independent Democrats were pledged to him even before the results of the May primary, the Western Maryland Republican said here in a weekend interview.

He defeated D'Alesandro by 14,744 votes in the Nov. 4 balloting, winning a second six-year term.

Many political observers have said it was largely resentment in the counties to the Baltimore may, which helped Beall to victory.

D'Alesandro's top running mate, J. Millard Tawes, defeated his GOP opponent for governor, Rep. James Devereux, by more than 200,000 votes in a Democratic landslide in Maryland. All seven congressional seats also went to the Democrats, as well as the comptroller's and attorney general's offices. Beall was the only oasis in a desert of Republican setbacks.

Beall said that if one of D'Alesandro's three chief primary opponents — George P. Mahoney, James Bruce or Clarence D. Long — had been nominated, "perhaps not the same people (in the Democratic party) would have supported us."

But, he added, many independent Democrats had pledged to support him regardless of which Democratic candidate was nominated. "Personally, I think we would have won anyhow," Beall said. "People generally were not mad at me."

Car's Interior Guttled By Fire

The interior of a car owned by James Kesner, formerly of Cresaptown, who now is employed in Washington, was gutted by fire yesterday at Cresaptown.

Cresaptown Volunteer Fire Company responded to the alarm about 1:50 a. m. with 10 men, and battled the blaze for 45 minutes.

Firemen said the fire apparently started from a short circuit in the car's wiring. The interior of the car was destroyed. Firemen were hampered somewhat by the extreme cold, although they reported none of their water lines frozen.

Two Cars Stolen; Another Attempt Is Thwarted

City police said a Baltimore and Ohio watchman last night foiled an attempt to steal his automobile parked near the Bedford Street crossing.

The watchman saw his car moving and ran across to the parking area where he found a youth about 14 or 15 behind the wheel of the vehicle. When he attempted to take the boy to police the lad broke away and fled. He was described as about 5 feet, 10 inches tall, wearing a blue sweater with red dots, and blue trousers.

Two other automobiles were reported stolen last night. James Weakley, 105 North Johnson Street, said his 1953 Plymouth sedan was taken from in front of his house. The license number is Maryland GB 41-84.

Another car reported stolen about 7 p.m. by W. Carl White of 18 North Allegany Street was recovered about 20 minutes later by the owner about a block from his home.
